JURY GETS $50,000 HEART SUIT

Lawyers Exchange Fiery Compliments in White-Weston Case Arguments

Closing arguments by counsel for both sides and Judge McLaughlin's charge to the jury occupied the morning session of the trial of the $50,000 damage suit brought by Mildred E. White, former milliner, against Horace Greeley Weston, Brookline foreman carpenter, for alleged breach o fpromise. The case went to the jury shortl yafter the noon recess.

The arguments were marked by strong denunciation on both sides. Charges of a "frame-up" that the opposing testimony was a "tissue of lies," a hint that opposing counsel was going to be in on the killing of the dotted calf," and the term "damned old fool" applied to Dr. C. E. Hewitt of Meriden, Ct., were features of Attorney Daniel J. Daley's argument for the defence.

"This brute of a man" was the characterization of Weston by Harvey Pratt. Miss White's counsel, and he also took a fling at Dr. Hewitt, saying:

"My brother attorney has referred to him as a 'damned old fool. I think he is worse; he is a 'vial.'"

The references were to a letter which Dr. Hewitt wrote to Miss White, in which he referred to "our hugs and kisses."

Dr. Hewitt had not been previously named in court except by his initials, "Dr. C. E. H."

"If Miss White ever had a breach of promise case," said Dr. Daley, "it is against the person who wrote this letter."

MISS WHITE IN TEARS.

Attorney Daley's argument was

NINE INFLUENZA DEATHS IN BOSTON IN 24 HOURS

Influenza figures in the Health Commissioner's office today showed a slight decline during the last twenty-four hours. From Sunday 9 a. m. to today at 9 a. m. there were eighteen cases and nine deaths. From Saturday, 9 a. m., to Sunday, 9 a. m., there were thirty-six cases and ten deaths, showing a total decrease of eighteen cases and one death.

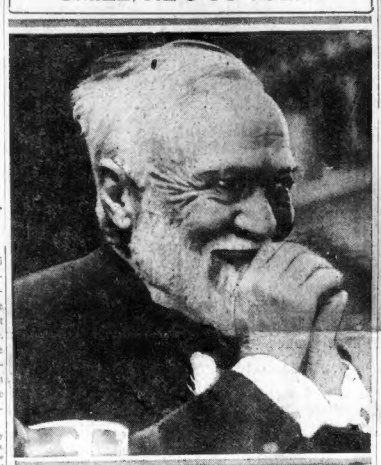
SOUTH BOSTON PROTEST T ON HIGHER L FARES

Plans are underway for a big mass meeting to be held in the Municipal Building, East Broadway, South Boston tomorrow night, under the auspices of the South Boston Citizens Association and the Trade Association, as a protest against the increase in fares on the Boston Elevated Railway. The meeting will be one of the largest ever held in South Boston.

NO MORE TICKETS FOR EDWARDS RECEPTION

A sign has been posted at the entrance of the executive chambers at the State House that no more tickets are to be had in connection with the reception of General Edwards tomorrow evening at the Arena. Six thousand have been distributed.

THE IRON MASTER'S FAMOUS SMILE, HE'S 83 TODAY



Andrew Carnegie, today four score and three, still shares in the joy of living, as his picture would indicate. His philanthropic gifts to the world amount to the enormous sum of $400,000,000. "The Star-Spangled Scotchman," they call him, because he flies Old Glory over Skibo Castle.

Adrew Carnegie, the "Star-Spangled Scotsman," is eighty-three years old to-day.

He gained the title when he bought Skibo Castle and flew the Stars and Stripes with the Union Jack from the castle staff.

The canny steel-master, who spent the past Summer at Bar Harbor, holds the record of having given away more money than almost any person on earth.

It is estimated that he has given to education and philanthropic purposes the staggering sum of $400,000,000.

When he retired from business in 1907, with a fortune of $400,000,000, he deliberately started to carry out his announced belief that a man ought to die poor.

His money gifts have averaged $25,000,000 a year. His chief disbursements, roughly classified, have been as follows:

Carnegie corporations	$125,000,000
Libraries	56,000,000
Hero funds	13,000,000
College pensions	22,000,000
Small colleges	20,000,000
Miscellaneous	25,000,000
Carnegie Institute and Foundation	100,000,000

He was last reported to have shaved his original fortune down to a bare twenty millions or so.

He was born in a Scottish hamlet, Dunfermline, was brought to Pittsburgh at the age of eleven, was a bobbin boy, messenger boy and telegrapher. He rose in Pennsylvania railroad service, made his first big money in sleeping cars and oil wells—not in steel as generally thought—later introduced English Bessemer steel into this country and became a Croesus.

He was chief of Union telegraphic communications in the Civil War and saw enough of war then to hate it ever since.

Some Carnegie maxims are:

"Industry and natural ability make up for a college education.

"I owe everything I have to my mother and my wife.

"Read frequently. It will aid you immeasureably in forging ahead."

HAZEL DAWN TO BE CHRISTMAS BALL DANCER

Famous Actress Enlists in American's Campaign to Furnish Dinners for Poor

Hazel Dawn, star of "Up in Mabel's Room," now playing at the Park Theatre, has offered to help the Boston AMERICAN'S Christmas Basket Fund. Miss Dawn offers to dance at the theatrical ball and frolic in Symphony Hall, Wednesday evening, December 4, with the man who offers the largest sum for the privilege. She has joined hands with Peggy Wood and Edith Day, stars of "Maytime" and "Going Up," who have made similar offers.

It would be difficult to find a daintier woman in America for a dancing partner than Miss Dawn. All who have seen her on the stage know what a charming young woman she is. And here's a tip for the dancers of Greater Boston—she is just as sweet and charming off stage as on. Think what a treat is in store for the lucky man who secures the honor of gliding over the well-waxed floor of classic Symphony Hall with this sprite!

The highest bidder will not only enjoy dancing with Miss Dawn but he will also have the added pleasure of knowing that the money he spends for the privilege will be used for the sole purpose of purchasing food for Christmas dinners for needy widows and poor kiddies.

Congressman-elect John F. Fitzgerald, who will play the role of auctioneer when the dances of the women stars are placed on sale, is looking forward with pleasure to the task. He has done many things during his varied career, but he promises

CLEAR KIEL PATH FOR BRITISH

Mine Sweepers Are Preparing Way for Naval Entry Into German Base

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 25.—A flotilla of British mine sweepers left the Firth of Forth at 9 a. m. today for Kiel to open up a passage for one battleship and a squadron of destroyers which will soon be dispatched to the German port to see that the remainder of the German fleet is disarmed and interned, according to the terms of the armistice.

The British squadron will be commanded by Vice Admiral Browning and will comprise the dreadnought Hercules and 10 destroyers.

American, French and Italian admirals will accompany Vice Admiral Browning.

Wilhelmshaven will be visited as well as Kiel.

McADOO CONFERS WITH RAIL CHIEFS IN SOUTH

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 25.—William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury and director-general of railroads, was in conference today in Atlanta with officials of the railroads in the Southern Division, trying to get action in improving traffic conditions. Mr. McAdoo said he was planning a long vacation, a real rest after his resignation takes effect at the end of the year.

In regard to permanent Federal ownership of railroads, he said he had never expressed his views on this policy, but expected to have something to say when he had definitely reached a conclusion.

PARIS PREPARES TO GREET KING GEORGE

SOCIALISTS IN GERMAN SADDLE

Extremists Wrest Control of Government From Moderates; Fighting in Berlin

London, Nov. 25.—(By British Wireless Press)—The whole control of Germany is now in the hands of the Berlin Workmen's and Soldiers' Council and a proclamation to that effect has been issued.

Latest reports from Germany indicate that the internal situation there has reached a critical stage.

The proclamation states that the council at Berlin will provisionally govern Germany in order to suppress all counter revolutionary attempts and a congress of workmen and soldiers will be summoned as soon as possible, though at present there is no talk about a national assembly.

REPUBLIC IN NORTH.

The decision has caused tremendous excitement throughout Germany, and the final result is that an independent republic has been formed in Northern Germany with Hamburg as the capital.

This republic includes Oldenburg, East Friesland, Bremen, Hamburg and Schleswig-Holstein.

South Germany—Wuertemberg and Baden, as well as Bavaria—are declaring they will not submit to the dictators in Berlin who have replaced the Kaiser and militarism.

It appears also that the cry "Away from Berlin" is being raised even in

McCALL SUGGESTED FOR PEACE ENVOY

Governor Samuel W. McCall's chances of being named one of the American peace delegates are growing stronger, with the general disposition to believe that former President Taft, Elihu Root and Charles E. Hughes have been eliminated from consideration. E. A. Filene is another Massachusetts man now figuring in the speculation. The delay in announcing the delegation is said to be due to President Wilson's decision over the Republican member.

MOFFETT TO COMMAND WARSHIP MISSISSIPPI

Washington, D. C., Nov. 25.—The Mississippi, one of America's newest and greatest dreadnoughts, will be commanded by Captain A. B. Moffett, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station at Chicago, the Navy Department announced today. Captain A. Scales will succeed Captain Moffett as head of the training station.

Logan Served 20 Years as a Soldier

Twenty years ago tomorrow the "Fighting Ninth," the Ninth Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, was mustered out of Federal service following the Spanish-American War. Leading that noted old unit on that day was Colonel, now Brigadier-General, Lawrence J. Logan.

Somewhere in France today Colonel Edward L. Logan, who led the 101st Regiment, composed of the "Fighting Ninth" and "Dandy Fifth," into action against the Germans, is in a rest camp. On the day the old regiment was mustered out Colonel Logan was a sergeant-major. General Logan succeeded Colonel Bogan to the command of the regiment during the Spanish War.

Oddly enough, both the senior officers had sons serving in the regiment. Also oddly enough both those sons went to France with the 101st and are today no longer members of it. Major Fred Bogan commands a hospital unit in the American Expeditionary Force.

McCALL ACTS TO AVERT FISH STRIKE

Governor Calls on Endicott to Get All Facts in Employes' Demands

Governor McCall has requested Food Administrator Endicott to investigate the threatened fish strike, and to take such immediate steps as he may deem necessary in connection with the matter.

The employes of the Fish Pier in South Boston, the chief point of the distribution of fish for the Eastern States, have given their employers ten days to grant or refuse the demands, which include an increase of 40 per cent. in wages and a month's vacation.

A strike would mean a serious interruption in the shipments of fish and a disarrangement of the carefully adjusted program of the Food Administration.

In addition to the demands of the fish handlers at the Pier it is understood that the fishermen also have presented demands.

In event of strike in Boston the price of fish, which is one of the few edibles which has not increased greatly in price, will soar to the point of an extreme luxury.

N. E. DEMAND THAT BOYS COME HOME

Washington, Nov. 25.—From all sections of New England demands are pouring into Washington that the 26th Division be the first unit returned from France. Mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers and sweethearts are beseiging the War Department with requests of this sort. It was revealed today that the names of half of the men in the 26th have appeared on casualty lists.

"The 26th was the first guard division overseas," said a high army officer today, "and it should be the first sent home. The fact that this division has participated in more fights, harder fights and has probably suffered greater losses than any other division, be it regular army, national guard or national army, is one reason for its early return. It has done more than any other division, and its great service merits its early return and demobilization."

Investigation at the War Department revealed the fact that about one-half of the numerical strength of the outfit had suffered casualties of one sort or another. There were 27,000 men in the division when it reached France, the first National Guard unit on foreign soil. According to the best estimate that can be secured at the War Department at least one-half of its members were reported wounded, killed or missing at one time or another.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Appointment of Major-General Clarence R. Edwards to head the Department of the Northeast, effective December 1, was officially announced by the War Department today.

REPORT LENINE AND AIDES IN FLIGHT TO THE FINNISH FRONTIER

Many Fall From Famine and Bullets in Revolt in Western Russia

London, Nov. 25.—Nicholine Lenine, Bolshevik premier of Russia, with thirteen other Bolshevik leaders, has fled to the Russo-Finnish frontier, where the party asked for neutral protection, said a Copenhagen dispatch to the Daily Mail today, quoting advices from Helsingfors, the Finnish capital.

By DR. DAVID SOSKICE.
Former Petrograd Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian and Private Secretary to Alexander F. Kerensky.

London, Nov. 25.—News which I have received from Moscow and other parts of Russia dominated by the Germans and the Bolsheviki shows that western Russia is in a state of latent revolt—a revolt of a people prompted by starvation on the one hand and Red Terror on the other.

Eye-witnesses who have escaped the horrors describe to me how the "intelligentia" are being gradually exterminated, numerous victims falling daily, either from famine or the bullets and bayonets of their oppressors.

I have before me a letter from Christiania saying, in part:

"A Russian family has arrived today from Petrograd in an absolutely indescribable condition. In Petrograd the Bolsheviki have begun to massacre all the "intelligentia" (educated classes), the former officers with special barbarity.

"Every night a cannonade goes on in all parts of the city; rifles and machine guns are at work. The 'intelligentia' are seized and driven en masse to Kronstadt, and it is unknown what fate befalls them there."

For the last several months the whole of Russia has been in a state of perpetual revolt, but it is the revolt of desperate, disorganized and disarmed masses against the mightiest and most perfidious power in the world—against Germany.

Germany, not by force of arms, but through Bolshevik treachery, means to stay in Russia. Having ascertained that she cannot reign the country either by arms or the establishment of friendly relations, she uses her Bolshevik tools in a policy of unprecedented destruction.

The policy consists in destroying all the living forces of Russia, industrially as well as intellectual. By ruining Russia's industries and terminating her educated classes, her experts and organizers, Germany hopes to reap all the advantages of being her next-door neighbor after the war.

RUSSIA GERMANY'S PREY.

Her calculation is that Russia, deprived perhaps for a generation of her own industries and experts, and separated from the other industrial countries by thousands of miles, will become Germany's undisputed prey and market. The Bolsheviki, who are destitute of any sort of constructive ideas, are tools admirably adapted for the execution of Germany's destructive designs, and her schemes are aided before them by German agents who work in their ranks.

The revolt of the people of Western Russia against the Germans and their Bolshevik instruments is not one that can be surpassed.

It is nourished by hatred and despair, and is of the nature of an irrepressible guerrilla warfare; the only kind of warfare which a distracted nation can wage against her ruthless oppressors.

Prussian General Staff Planned to Defeat France in One Month

By International News Service.

London, Nov. 25.—The Prussian general staff reckoned on defeating France within one month in 1914, basing this belief upon France's shortage of rifles, according to a dispatch from Munich today. The Munich correspondent is publishing an official report on the origin of the war, divided as follows:

1—Conditions deliberately imposed upon Serbia enforcing a conflict.

2—Berlin gave Vienna a free hand, even risking war with Russia.

3—The plan was for the Kaiser and the German government to be outwardly surprised at Austria's action.

4—The Prussian general staff, calculating on France's shortage of rifles and artillery, reckoned on the defeat of France in a month.

Bolsheviki Execute Socialist Workmen Who Refuse to Obey

Paris, Nov. 25.—Socialist workmen who refuse to submit to the authority of the Bolshevist functionaries in Russia are being put to death by the red guards in the same wholesale fashion as members of the aristocracy, military officers and bourgeoisie.

Three hundred workmen were put to death recently at Taroslav for rebellion against the drastic acts of this terrorist regime, as a result of this and other acts the revolutionary socialists and social democrats have sent a delegation to France to appeal to the International Socialists to release them from the present oppressive rule.

The delegation is composed of Messieurs Axelrod, Roussanves and Soukhomlin, who arrived yesterday, and were formally received by the Socialist group of the Chamber of Deputies.

British Display Great Interest in U. S. Naval Program

London, Nov. 24.—The British press is displaying tremendous interest in the American naval program, as cabled by Washington correspondents of the leading English journals.

The Globe carried a long dispatch about the American program under a "steam roller" headline: "Two Mistresses of the Sea."

TWO CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH AT HATFIELD

Hatfield, Nov. 25.—Left alone while their parents were working, Stanley Dubiel, aged four, and his sister Chesley, aged two, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dubiel, were burned to death when fire destroyed their home over the postoffice in this town. Cries of the babies gave the alarm, but efforts of would-be rescuers were fruitless and their badly charred bodies were found beneath a bed where they had crawled for safety. A defective chimney is believed to have been the cause of the fire, which damaged the building to the extent of $3,000.

BURLESON POINTS OUT CO-ORDINATION BENEFIT

Washington, Nov. 25.—One of the advantages of the co-ordination of the telephone and telegraph systems under the Postoffice Department will be the added facilities given the wire companies for locating persons to whom messages insufficiently addressed have been sent, Postmaster-General Burleson announced today. The postmaster-general has amended the postal regulations which prohibited furnishing postoffice information to that employes of the telegraph and telephone companies may have access to the records.

RADICALS NOW IN CONTROL IN BERLIN

Prussia itself, especially as the feeling is gaining ground that the tyranny exercised by the rulers in Berlin may shortly be supported by revolutionary militarism.

TUMULT AT CAPITAL.

Recent dispatches say that the Ebert government was overthrown by the radicals, under the leadership of Karl Liebknecht and that turmoil prevails in the German capital.

(The followers of Liebknecht are known as the Spartacus group, and are in sympathy with the Russian Bolsheviki.)

The Spartacus group are in complete control at Duesseldorf, Solingen and Remscheid, where they have arrested the city officials, it was stated in a dispatch to the Daily Mail.

There has been bloody fighting in Berlin.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the Central News says that the central government at Berlin called many troops to that city and that the Brown buildings were packed with soldiers.

FEAR COUP D'ETAT.

Earlier advices said that stores of ammunition were collected in Berlin for use against the extremists, but that the city was quiet on Saturday, following a two-day burst of fighting when the Bolsheviki attempted a coup.

The German internal situation is highly critical and a military coup d'etat is almost certain unless the returning troops vigorously support the Berlin government, said a Munich dispatch to the Daily News.

The Rotterdam correspondent of the Daily News quotes the German War food department as saying that the food situation is satisfactory. Belief is expressed, adds the correspondent, that General Barth and German politicians exaggerated the peril to obtain an easy and speedy peace.

APPEAL BY POPE.

On the other hand, the Copenhagen correspondent of the Central News reported Berlin advices as saying that the Pope has appealed to Anglo-French episcopates and the French government for a speedy conclusion of the armistice terms "in view of the famine in the Rhine districts."

Kurt Eisner, head of the Bavarian republic, was quoted in dispatches as saying that Bolshevism or a Berlin dictatorship would result in the rupture of Bavaria. He favored a split-up into ten German republics having equal authority and rights.

Radical Control of German Affairs Will Complicate Peace

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 25.—The German internal situation today is being watched with increasing concern by officials here. It seems to present all of the elements that have brought Russia into its present complete state of anarchy.

According as true the reports that the radicals under Karl Liebknecht have gained control of the government, it was pointed out today that an understanding between the new German control and the Lenine-Trotzky domination at Petrograd is almost certain. That this would mean very serious complications in the effort to arrange a permanent peace was the general opinion of officials here.

It has been found absolutely impossible to do any business with the Russian Bolshevigi forces and should they be able to combine with the German Reds the United States and the allied powers undoubtedly would have to arrange a complete new program.

The information reaching Washington from various sources today dealing with the internal situation in Germany was conflicting in many respects. From Scandinavian points the reports say that the various states composing the German federation are contemplating insisting on their right to set up separate republics.

The Soldiers' and Workers' Council at Kiel is insisting that all authority be vested in it "until the fruits of the revolution" can be safeguarded. The council also has proclaimed, these reports say, all of the North Sea coast of Germany from Holland to Denmark a republic. The Council of Workers at Cologne has openly advocated a republic to be composed of the Rhine provinces, while unrest has spread to all of South Germany.

In addition the attitude of the returning soldiers is not yet known here. It is this fact that has added to the fear of an attempted military coup d'etat designed to place a military dictator in control of the country. The next few weeks must be fraught with serious danger to any proposed [illegible] government.

'FRAMEUP,' SAYS COUNSEL FOR WESTON

followed by that of Harvey Pratt, chief counsel for Miss White. The former milliner was represented by three lawyers. Indicating them, after referring to the amount of damages asked for, Attorney Daley said:

"When I look at all this array of counsel I wonder if they are all going to be in on the killing of the fatted calf."

"No courtship," said the attorney, in part, "ever had its beginning the way this one had. No man desiring a wife would have begun with her the way Weston began with Miss White. Courtships don't begin with the intimacy of husband and wife at the second meeting. If they do we must revolutionize the morals of the whole community.

"The plaintiff's case is a frame-up from beginning to end, and is supported by a tissue of lies. If there had been a courtship as alleged, it would seem as though during all that time Weston would have introduced Miss White and said to someone, 'Let me introduce you to Miss White, who is going to be my wife.'

CHARGES "HOLDUP" GAME.

"No such evidence exists. In the letters of Miss White no terms of endearment are used, such as an engaged girl might be expected to employ. The letters are cold-blooded up to two days before the marriage."

Attorney Daley charged that the purpose in bringing suit for a large sum was "with the intention of getting publicity."

"The same old game—holdup," he continued. "There was never any promise to marry. Is it not fair to say that a man who will refuse to be blackmailed and blackjacked into court, and will fight the case, is to be commended?

"There could be no other explanation of this, because all the evidence tends to show that Weston for the past twenty-three years has been a carpenter earning from $2.60 to $6 a day."

JUDGMENT OF $50 IS GIVEN AGAINST 'DOCTOR'

A suit for $300 brought by Erasmo Malleri against James Togna, Roxbury, who it is claimed induced the self out as a physician under the title of "Chev. James Togna, M. Instead of improving within nine period guaranteed, Malleri grew worse, and when at the point of death, it is claimed, another physician was called and saved his life. Togna failed to appear when the case was called today and was defaulted. Judge Murray thereupon gave Malleri judgment for the $50 he had paid to Togna and also the costs of the suit.

ARMISTICE TO BE EXTENDED TO FEB. 1

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Extension of the armistice between Germany and the United States and entente nations until February 1 shortly will be announced, it was declared by high officials here today. The preliminary conferences, for which President Wilson is going abroad next week, will of necessity be of the utmost importance. They are expected to result in a general agreement between the four great nations that must dictate the terms of peace—the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy—so that there will be no division at the actual peace conference.

And those preliminary conferences, which will begin about the middle of December, will rob Germany of her greatest trump card—the hope that the ranks of the allies will be split and enable Germany to trade instead of accepting a dictated peace.

With Secretary of State Lansing and Secretary to the President Tumulty back in Washington today, the finishing touches were being put upon the President's program. Whether it will be an early announcement of the personnel of the American peace delegation, however, was a subject on which officials refused all information.

GERMANY'S HOPE IN DISCORD.

Certain of the President's closest advisers have urged him not to announce his colleagues on the peace conference, always providing that he actually intends to head the delegation, until he addresses Congress when it reassembles next week. As a reason for this they declare that the shorter the time between the making public of the personnel of the party and the date of their sailing the less time there will be for interested parties to bring influence to have themselves attached to the official party.

Officials today were inclined to regard the suggestions that the administration is injecting mystery into its plans for the coming peace conference. Nothing could be farther from the truth, they say. Attention was called to the attitude that Germany all along had adopted in dealing with her opponents. She has consistently tried to array Russia against England and England against the United States and vice versa, and today that attitude is very much apparent than it was during the progress of the war.

The only hope that Germany has of saving anything from the wreck of her ambitions, administration leaders declared today, will be in securing a disagreement between the "big four" of the peace conference.

It was because he realized this fact that Premier Clemenceau sent his invitation to President Wilson to "sit by my side" and thresh out the problems of peace. Premier Lloyd George also concurred in the invitation for the conference. And the President, it can be stated on the very highest authority, is in full sympathy with the proposition for a complete informal exchange of views and arrangements preliminary to the opening of the big points at issue, between the leaders of the thought before the actual peace conferences commence.

With the leaders a unit regarding the steps necessary to assure to the world a lasting peace the work of the peace conference will be greatly simplified. And the machinery to secure such an agreement is ready at hand. The inter-allied conference does not met, since it completed the terms of the armistice. Today Colonel E. M. House sat as President Wilson's proxy.

The next meeting will be shortly after the middle of December. Then the President will be present in person and he will be able to elucidate his views to the leaders of the other premiers. Meeting in the closely guarded headquarters in the palace at Versailles the leaders will be able to exchange opinions and draft their program without fear of interruption.

NO SECRET DIPLOMACY.

When that program is arranged a complete statement will be forthcoming for the benefit of the American people. There will be no secret diplomacy, officials again asserted today, according to reports. The subject at issue is too great and means too much to the people of the world to have it settled through round table procedure. But it is absolutely necessary that the viewpoint of the "spokesmen for democracy" as the President and the allied premiers were today aptly termed, should be secured without acrimonious debate. And such debate hardly could be avoided if the representatives of the great allied powers entered the peace conference without previously having reached a basis of common understanding.

Officials here believe that a complete agreement on the big questions involved in the creation of a league of nations and also the "freedom of the seas" shall be assured is possible. They say that such a complete understanding on both subjects in the abstract and not in detail can be subject to argument are of detail only.

ELEVATOR GIRL SAYS SHE WILL YET WED 63-YEAR-OLD ROMEO

KEYS NOW HELD BY GUARDIAN

Florence Girardin Loses Auto Race; Keys, a Prisoner, May Be Hustled West

"Of course I am going ahead with my plans to marry Mr. Keys. I love him and he loves me."

Thus spoke Miss Florence E. Girardin, the young elevator girl fiancee of John Baker Keys of Cincinnati, when told that her sixty-three-year-old wooer had been arrested in Newburyport on a charge of drunkenness and was held in Boston today in charge of a guardian from his home city. Miss Girardin refused to let a police cell interfere with her romance, or to believe that her elderly fiance would be deterred by bolts and bars from wedding her as planned.

Miss Girardin is 19. On learning that Keys had been held by the police in Newburyport, she jumped into a car and made the 38 miles from her home in Dorchester in record time, accompanied by her brother Earl. On reaching Newburyport, she learned that Keys had just left, and immediately right-about-faced and gave chase. It was a losing race, for the Keys party had a good start, and must have passed Miss Girardin on the turnpike as their car left.

FIANCEE DEMANDS RIGHTS.

The automobile containing Mr. Keys, his guardian, Edgar Stark of Cincinnati, Charles F. Ryan of the Cincinnati police force, and Inspector Stephen Flaherty of the Boston police, reached Boston early today. Stark and Ryan went to the Touraine, but refused to disclose Keys' whereabouts, saying that he was staying with friends. It is believed that an effort is being made to take him back to Cincinnati. Miss Girardin has stated her intention of consulting a lawyer to protect her rights as his fiancee.

It was only a few days ago that the two met at the Harvard Club, where Miss Girardin was elevator girl. Keys was a guest, being an alumnus of that college. The moment he saw Miss Girardin he "picked" her and said so. He even told the head waiter.

It was, both declared, a case of love at first sight. Keys began to shower the girl with invitations. They took motor trips and dined in various places, and the doting Romeo bought his bride-elect a fur coat and hat, and took her shopping for a trousseau.

SHE WAITED IN VAIN.

Previously to his arrest, Keys had been wanted by the Boston police for two days, following advice from Cincinnati that he was not responsible, but he managed to evade the officers, and spent a considerable part of Saturday with Miss Girardin in a local department store. They visited clothing in various departments, and Keys drew a check for $500 in payment. Before delivering the goods the store wired to the Cincinnati bank to find out whether the check would be honored.

Yesterday Keys hired a car and made the trip to Newburyport. He had an appointment with Miss Girardin at 7 p. m. in Boston, which his arrest prevented him from keeping. His fiancee waited for him in vain, smartly dressed in a dark blue velvet gown, pumps and the fur hat and coat he had presented to her.

BOTH FAMILIES OPPOSED.

The two families, it is understood, are both opposed to the match. Miss Girardin has been at odds with her parents over the matter from the first. She did not confide in them, nor had Keys been at the house, but when Florence's plans became known her father and mother objected on account of the difference in age.

Ohio court records show that relatives of Keys applied for a guardian for him four years ago. The family is prominent in Cincinnati, and on the application appeared the names of Mrs. Howard Hollister, a sister of Keys, wife of United States District Judge Hollister; and Attorney Burton H. Hollister, the Judge's brother. No action was taken to complete the guardianship until a few days ago.

"We have known each other for some time," Miss Girardin said just before starting on her trip to Newburyport. "The mere fact that Mr. Keys was arrested on a charge of drunkenness isn't going to interfere with our plans. I heard that his relatives in Cincinnati had applied for a guardian for Mr. Keys, but he seems able to take care of himself, and it looks to me as if everybody was afraid that he would get married. I am going right straight to him as quick as I can."

Keys told a reporter that he was worth about $200,000. It had been rumored that he was a millionaire.

Lonesome Soldier in France Begs for Letters

"There's a very lonesome chap at a convalescent camp over in Limoges," writes Private Oliver McKinsey to the AMERICAN. "I have nothing to do except write letters, and the trouble is I have no one to write to."

"I would greatly appreciate it if you will kindly get some one to write to me," the young engineer tells the editor of the AMERICAN—who is only too willing to ask you, reader.

Private Oliver McKinsey, Company D, Sixth U. S. Engineers, Convalescent Camp, A. P. O. 752, France, is the address of a soldier who was gassed up near Fismes August 1, when the Americans were smashing the Germans back from the Marne.

"I was in Base Hospital 28 for two months, and now at this convalescent camp I do not know how long. Only it is fierce when all the other chaps are receiving letters and I never get any," says McKinsey.

In addition to Miss Dawn four other members of "Up in Mabel's Room" company have offered to dance with Bostonians who are willing to contribute to the basket fund for the honor. They are Adele Rolland, Long, Cotton, Enid Markey and Evelyn Gosnell. The management of the production claims that this quintet of women are the prettiest in any single show in the United States today.

It looks as if beauty will be enshrined at the ball. Judging from present indications more pretty women will be present at Symphony Hall that evening than have ever gathered at a single function in this city.

That Miss Stewart is in dead earnest about doing her part in sending the Christmas Basket Fund over the top is known by her generous offer to send a personally autographed photograph of herself to anyone who subscribes to the fund using the coupon printed in this newspaper.

As there will undoubtedly be a great number who will respond to the appeal, especially when there is given an opportunity to receive this favor, Miss Stewart's part to autograph every photograph she sends out.

The sympathetic interest and devotion of Miss Stewart to the Christmas Basket Fund is proving a monument to her generosity and will endear her to more and more of the photoplay fans of New England especially.

ON WAY TO CALIFORNIA.

The little star will soon reach her destination in Los Angeles, where she is to complete her second big production "In Old Kentucky," and once there the Basket Fund Editor expects to hear of her success in interesting other stars in the good cause, as she promised to do before leaving.

PROFITEERING LANDLORDS EXPOSED

How wartime shipbuilding can make a $2,000 house at Bath, Me., worth $4,600 a year to its owner is one of the instances cited by James Ford, manager of the Bureau of Housing of the Department of Labor, to illustrate profiteering in housing, at today's session of the Housing Conference at the Copley-Plaza Hotel. His investigations revealed that war conditions made house property at Key West, Fla., worth 200 per cent. a year.

Mr. Ford and John C. Ellis, chairman of the Central Labor Union at New London, Ct., discussed the housing problem as connected with war industries, dealing especially with measures taken to cope with profiteers. Both gave astonishing figures showing the upward bound of rents.

Mr. Ford found a house that rented for $30 a month in 1917, $40 in 1918, $50, and a few weeks later $70, in 1918. It was in South Charleston, W. Va. Because of rising wages and improvements in the house, the $50 figure was allowed to stand.

Secretary of Labor Wilson directed the establishment throughout the country of local housing committees to regulate rents. Each consists of six men, representative of workers, manufacturers and local real estate interests.

Mr. Ellis described how the committees figured fair rents. He instanced a house of $4,000 assessed valuation, to which the committee added $1,500 as an approximate of increased value. On the $5,500 valuation they figured an annual 10 per cent. a fair return.

Not conferences, but action is the present need, according to Mr. Ellis, who declared that profiteering in house rents is growing worse than it was before the signing of the armistice. It would be time folly, he said, to abolish the local housing committees at this time, when wages are already beginning to decrease in the shipyards and rents are constantly increasing in their neighborhoods.

The "little fellows" owning four or five houses are the worst profiteers, Mr. Ellis said. In his own city of New London, newspaper publicity, and the publishing of profiteer landlords' names, won the housing committee's fight.

A resolution is being considered asking the government not to abolish the local committees, in the general discussion following the addresses of Dr. Ford and Mr. Ellis. It was urged that a ten per cent. increase in rents is justifiable in most places; that twenty per cent. may be in many localities; but that thirty per cent. is subject to suspicion of profiteering every time.

Food Expenditures Increase 16 P. C. Within Year

Washington, Nov. 25.—A statement showing average family expenditure for food during the past year has just been issued by the Labor Department.

The figures, which are based on price quotations received monthly by the department from more than 4,000 retail stores throughout the country, and which are taken from the twenty-two most essential articles, show that the average family expenditure from September, 1917, to September, 1918, increased 16 per cent.

During the past year says the Labor Department, the average cost of food in New York was 6 per cent. above that for the United States, while the cost in Chicago was 6 per cent. below the average of the United States.

VON MACKENSEN AND STAFF ARE DISARMED

By International News Service.

Paris, Nov. 25.—When Field Marshal von Mackensen and his staff arrived at the Silesia station in Berlin, all were disarmed and all of their gold and a great store of food were seized by the revolutionary guard, said a Zurich dispatch to the Matin today. The revolutionaric considered the Mackensen party's supplies as "stolen goods."

ITALY'S FORMER PREMIER SEEKS SATISFACTION

Rome, Nov. 25.—Italy has just witnessed a parliamentary sequel to the Caporetto disaster. A committee of deputies appointed to inquire into charges against ex-Premier Giolitti, the Radical leader who opposed the war until Italy actually entered the conflict, says the government failed to prove Giolitti guilty of treason.

The treason charge was preferred against the ex-Premier in the Chamber of Deputies by one of the members, Marquis Centurione, who declared he had shadowed certain Italian Socialists and found proof that they prepared the disastrous breakdown of the Italian Isonzo army a year ago. Giolitti demanded an immediate investigation. Now that he has been publicly exonerated by the Parliamentary Committee, his friends demand the resignation of Marquis Centurione as a member of the Chamber.

Make Thanksgiving Conservation Day, Says Endicott

With a reminder of the needs of the allied peoples, Henry B. Endicott appeals to Massachusetts families to make Thanksgiving Day a Conservation Day, as well. "We live in a land of plenty," Mr. Endicott continues, "but by this year suspending a prodigal table, we can save at that one meal tons of food for our neighbors across the seas.

"An extra chair and an extra plate should be set at every table in the Commonwealth for a neighbor who cannot come, as a silent reminder that the hospitality of the day should be extended to some among the hungry people of Europe through our saving of food," says he.

BRITISH PLAN TO KEEP CONTROL OF SEAS

By E. G. FITZHAMON.

(Special Cable Dispatch, Copyright, 1918, by Universal Service).

London, Nov. 25.—Outcropping of British public opinion during the last forty-eight hours and expressions by members of Parliament since its prorogation indicate that concern for the maintenance of British sea power is more genuine and widespread than is the belief in making impossible another world war.

While the British pacifist minority is endeavoring conscientiously to encompass the reduction of armaments as the first step toward the creation of a league of nations, the British jingoes are preparing to notify the world in unmistakable terms that Britannia rules the waves and figures on keeping right on in the wave ruling business, regardless of what other nations may think.

Another large section of British public opinion is voicing the view that the armistice was granted prematurely, for political effect in the United States, and here. This element points to the election here two days prior to the expiration of the armistice, in the belief that this makes it a foregone conclusion the present coalition government will be re-endowed with power at the polls while everything is hanging fire.

In some quarters it is also asserted that the groundwork for the armistice was prepared hurriedly at Washington, immediately prior to the elections in the United States.

The general belief here appears to be that the ex-Kaiser is only playing possum now. There is, indeed, an increasing feeling that sweeping military movements against the German armies should have been allowed, and that, in fact, the war should have been carried on until the Kaiser, his sons and the generals of the high command had surrendered themselves to the Allies as Napoleon III. and his staff did in 1871.

With regard to the "freedom of the seas," which is at the present the all-absorbing topic of discussion here, the Times and Morning Post, and the chief exponents of British naval policy, are coming out boldly in behalf of the maintainence of British maritime supremacy, with a soft pedal on disarmament.

GEN. EDWARDS DEFENDS LOGAN

"Everything to Honor in His Achievements." Says Former Commander of 26th

Division (New England National Guard division), who left New York at 10 o'clock today for Boston, praises the achievements of Colonel Edward L. Logan, former commander of the 101st Regiment Infantry, and says that Boston people "must feel that they have everything to honor" in Colonel Logan's deeds of war.

General Edwards will assume charge on December 1 of the Northeastern Department. He was first in charge when this department was so created more than a year ago. He left it to take command of the 26th Division.

With zeal and emotion General Edwards spoke of the gallant action of the 26th Regiment at Chateau Thierry. This he considered the noblest achievement of his division.

"Those boys went through h—— to get there," he said. "They let nothing come between them. They fought for days through seemingly unendurable hardships at Chateau Thierry. I can never forget those days. Yes, there was the gallant Logan, always with his troops, going everywhere with them into the thickest of the fighting.

"I have nothing but the highest esteem for the way in which he passed through many hellish places, encouraging his troops and giving them what troops most need, often, the companionship of their officers.

"Boston people must feel that they have everything to honor in the achievements of Colonel Logan.

TRIBUTE TO LOGAN.

"I know what he did. I have found him during the lull of the battle calling upon the wounded of his regiment and giving them every comfort.

"I did not know anything about his removal till after I left the division, but I feel it my duty to bear this willing testimony to his merits. I know absolutely nothing about anything else which has occurred, and I am only speaking out of my experience with him as I found him in my division.

"I must do this out of justice to him and what he has done."

After we had talked over other battles which had been fought and won, which General Edwards has already made known in the citations published, I asked once more, knowing so many people were interested in Boston about the condition of Colonel Logan, if he were well.

"I have nothing more to say about this than when I last saw the colonel he was very well. I never saw him looking better," General Edwards replied.

BEST OF HEALTH.

"Why, they circulated a report that I was ill and had to give up my command. Look at me. Do I look ill? I underwent a physical examination in France and passed all right.

"Ill; why, there's nothing sickly about me. I never felt better in all my life than I do now. Please nail that misstatement, and nail it hard."

Is it so that Brigadier-General G. H. Cole, commanding the 52nd Brigade, has been relieved of his charge? I asked.

"I do not know much about it except that Cole is a splendid chap. He has done heroic work. I am proud of him. That fellow showed marvellous good sense at all times. I should be sorry to know he has been relieved of the command."

TO TALK ABOUT BATTLES.

Nothing pleases General Edwards more than the fact he is coming to Boston to tell every one about the Chateau-Thierry action, the second battle of the Marne, Torcy, Belleau, Epieds, La Charmel, Sergy, Gurcy, Vesle and Flames.

Above everything else, the subject which the general has upon his mind, and will find himself constantly touching upon as every battle scene is brought into conversation, is the daredevil spirit of the 26th Division.

"They had to be kept back. They would even seek the places which were considered out of the question to attack and persist in attacking if granted one straw of approval," said General Edwards.

ONLY COLD PRINT HERE.

"I do not think the people at home know one-tenth about their fighting spirit. What has come back to is cold print, but the actions of the 26th Division never can be expressed in words.

"It must have to be seen to be appreciated. This splendid courage shown on all sides by the men of my division makes it a real pleasure for me to visit again Boston and hear testimony to how I feel.

"When I first came to New England I was told that the people were cold, but I never found it so. When I talked with the New England boys over there, I felt the fires of their souls warm. They can fight because they have an inner heat inside of them, only they want something to bring it out.

"It certainly was out in my division."

ALWAYS WITH BOYS.

A friend of General Edwards told me that General Edwards was always with the boys in the thick of the fight. He had to be warned about the danger again and again. He loved the boys so well that he wanted to go everywhere with them.

To show some of the esteem in which the boys held the general, is brought out when the news came of the death of his only daughter, Bessie, at Camp Meade. Nearly every man who could get near General Edwards expressed his sympathy. There were hundreds of them. General Edwards was touched with this manifestation.

Certainly no man shows more the spirit of true administration for his men. He is so proud of them that he always must tell you something about them.

"They are the salt of the army and they pickled every Boche they got hold of in France," he declares.

Commander of New England's Own to Be Honored Tomorrow

New England tomorrow honors Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of "New England's Own," the 26th Division.

A celebration and reception, the like of which has not been seen since the return of Admiral Dewey, after the battle of Manila Bay, has been arranged in honor of the "Father of the Twenty-sixth," so-called by his New England soldiers because of his share in their trials and triumphs.

New England Governors, State officials, Congressmen, consuls and army and naval officers will take part in the big reception tomorrow.

At 10 o'clock a cavalry troop will escort General Edwards to the State House, where Governor McCall and State officials will greet him at the executive office.

From 11 o'clock until 12:30 a public reception is to be held at the Hall of Flags—re-opened for the first time since America entered the war—where thousands of New England men, women and children will file past and shake the hands of New England's returned hero.

At 1:30 General Edwards will be the guest of honor at a luncheon at the City Club. At 3 o'clock he will be given a reception at the Algonquin Club. The State dinner is to be held at the Copley-Plaza at 6 o'clock.

More than 10,000 persons are expected to take part in the public reception at the Boston Arena, at 8 o'clock. There General Edwards will tell of the deeds performed by New England boys at Chateau-Thiery; how they stopped the oncoming Germans and turned threatened defeat into victory.

The day's activities for General Edwards will be concluded by a reception at Symphony Hall by the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, to be held at 10 o'clock.

Gen. Crozier to Retire as Head of Northeast Department December 1

Major-General William Crozier, present head of the Department of the Northeast, is to be retired from service in the United States army January 1.

He will retire from the command of the Department of the Northeast December 1.

Early next year General and Mrs. Crozier will start on a tour of the world. They are going to travel all over the battlefields of France and communicate with a host of foreign friends and finally make their trip around the globe.

General Crozier, up to the time of his appointment as major-general in the line, was chief of ordnance for seventeen years.

He was born in Ohio in 1855, and at the age of seventeen was appointed to the West Point Military Academy. In 1876 he received his first commission as second lieutenant, and was assigned to duty with the Fourth Artillery. Within two years he was a veteran of the Powder River campaign against the Sioux, under General Crook, which occurred in the the Hannock war of 1876, under Colo. winter of 1876-77. He also served in the Nez Perce war of 1877, and was then quartermaster of the command.

After the war he became instructor in mathematics at the military academy from 1879 to 1884. During this service he was transferred to the ordnance department after competitive examination, in accordance with the law. The latter part of 1884 he was ordered to the Watertown arsenal.

General Edwards Declares 26th Accomplished the Impossible

By Major-General Clarence R. Edwards,

(Written especially for the Boston American.)

MY heart warms to New England in this invitation to Boston as a tribute to those stout-hearted lads I had the honor of commanding in nine months' desperate fighting on the first front line.

I left them on October 25, north of Verdun, after they had taken the last heights of the Meuse, the only remaining Boche observation posts. They accomplished the impossible.

They never gave a foot of ground and never failed to gain their objectives. They have been cited by many French generals with whom they served. They are called "La Belle Division Americaine," the Saviors of Paris.

They are now resting and enjoying the first leave of absence since they left New England. Many lives have been given and much blood has been shed, but back of it all is the glory of serving in such a cause.

In no part of the world may mothers, fathers and other relatives be prouder. Never has tradition been better fulfilled. I congratulate you people of New England upon your kinship of those young men.

I believe the combat troops should be the first to return as they were the first to go.

RAILS WEAKEN; COPPERS HOLD FIRM

Early Display of Strength in New York Market Soon Disappears

The New York stock market opened weak today and, following a little show of strength, prices went still lower. Rails were a weak feature. Steels and coppers held firm.

Southern Pacific sold down from 102¾ to 100¾, off 2; Reading from 86¾ to 84½, off 1¾; Union Pacific from 130¾ to 128½, off 1¾; New York Central from 76½ to 75¼, off 1¾; Baltimore & Ohio from 54¾ to 53⅜, off 1¾, and Northern Pacific from 85 to 84, off 1.

U. S. Steel dropped from 100⅛ to 99⅝, off ½; Bethlehem B from 62¾ to 62¼, off ⅝; Crucible from 57¾ to 56⅝, off ⅞, and Republic from 77 to 76⅜, off ⅝; Baldwin from 73¾ to 74¾, off 1¼.

After selling higher, Anaconda lost ⅝, at 64⅝; Inspiration ¼, at 47¾, and Utah was unchanged, 78¾. American Smelting was off ⅝, at 82¾.

Studebaker opened off ⅝, at 84¼, then sold at 86, up 1; Maxwell rose 1, to 26¾; General Motors 2¾, to 127. Willys-Overland lost ½, at 23¾. Corn Products sold 44⅝, off ½; American Can 41½, off 1¼; Sumatra 101¾, off 2½, and Mexican Petroleum, after rising 1¾ to 162, lost 5⅜, at 155. Marine preferred retained 1¼, at 109¾.

The Boston exchange was weak. Boston & Maine sold off 1, at 31; New Haven 1⅝, at 35¾. Swift & Co. lost ⅝, at 124; Punta Alegre Sugar 1½, at 46½; United Shoe ⅝, at 42¾; Gorton-Pew ½, at 29¾; Mass. Gas 1⅝, at 84⅝, Copper Range ⅝, at 46, and U. S. Smelting ½, at 48½. Boston Elevated gained ¼, at 76, and United Fruit ⅝, at 142⅝.

The market was active at midday and the price range lower. Losses of 2 and 3 points were common.

Reading receded to 82, Union Pacific to 127⅝, Southern Pacific 99, Atchison 97½, Northern Pacific 82, New Haven 34, Canadian Pacific 156, New York Central 74¾, Great Northern pfd. 94½, St. Paul 45¼, Missouri Pacific 24¾, U. S. Steel 99, Bethlehem B 62, Baldwin 73, Anaconda 64¼ and Marine pfd. 103.

UNDERWRITERS GIVE UP EAGLE WING AS LOST

The Marine Insurance Underwriters today finally give up for lost, the American four-masted schooner Eagle Wing, which was probably sank late in August by a German U-boat between Bermuda and New York. The Eagle Wing sailed from Bermuda, August 10, and has never been heard from. She carried nine men. The Eagle Wing was famous for having withered the great blizzard in which the Portland was lost twenty years ago next Wednesday.

Gen. Crozier Greets Edwards, Successor as Northeast Chief

Major-General William Crozier, retiring commander of the Department of the Northeast, with Mrs. Crozier and officers of his staff, was at the train to meet General Clarence R. Edwards today on the latter's arrival to resume command of the department after months of service overseas.

Officers accompanying General Crozier were Captain H. D. Chandler, his aide, and Colonel Warren F. Newcomb. General Crozier expressed warm appreciation of the courtesies extended him while he has been stationed in Boston. He told newspapermen that he had enjoyed his stay here, and that the circumstances were appropriate to a shift in offices, as the signing of an armistice restored practically normal conditions. He said that he had been contemplating retirement for a long time, and should spend his time in travel. He was warm in praise of his successor.

Special Mass at Milford

Milford, Nov. 25.—The Rev. F. McGrath, pastor of St. Mary's Church, today celebrated an anniversary mass for deceased members of St. Mary's Academy Alumni Association. A solemn high mass will be celebrated Thanksgiving day and Rev. John E. Doherty of Westfield will deliver the sermon.

CITY COUNCIL SLATE MAKERS ARE BUSY

With the closing time set for tomorrow night at 5 o'clock for the reception of nomination papers, interest in the approaching City Council fight waxes strong. This year the whole situation seems to be uncertain as the rumored apathy of the Good Government Association puts a sort of damper upon the city political situation. Those who follow city politics can hardly imagine a contest for the City Council without indorsements from the Goo-Goos.

One thing is certain, the Good Government Association will not take the active part in the election this year, that has characterized it in former contests. There is no question but the Goo-Goos will indorse three men, but as far as active support is concerned it will be of the pamphlet variety and no other.

MAKING UP SLATES.

It is rumored that Councillors Ford, Watson, McDonald and possibly another, will combine their efforts in putting across a slate, and it is stated that the chances are good for such a venture, owing to the unusual conditions this year.

Up to the present moment the names which are likely to appear on the ballot, barring withdrawals, are Walter L. Collins, John J. Cassidy, Edward F. McLaughlin, Frank A. Goodwin, Thomas J. Hall, Alfred E. Wellington, Albert Horwitz, William McKenzie and John A. Donoghue. With the withdrawal of Altrides from the active lists Collins is the only veteran in the field. He has served three full terms in the City Council and is at present the presiding officer.

He is the only one in the entire list of aspirants that is certain of getting the Goo-Goo indorsement.

In the meantime, the rumored coalition of the city councillors offers some difficulties as there is also a lack of available material for a straight out and out Democratic slate. Edward F. McLaughlin, the former Democratic city committee chairman, is fairly well known, but has never been a candidate at large over the city before. He will probably be selected as one for such a slate in case the rumored proposition is put into effect.

HAVE THE ADVANTAGE.

The list of candidates for a so-called regular Democratic slate is composed of men who are politically well known. Cassidy, Goodwin, Wellington, Horwitz and Collins have all been candidates before and will have this advantage over their opponents.

Until the time for closing tomorrow night there will be little done in the matter, but it will be interesting to see the lineup, as it will in all probability narrow down to two slates.

Edward F. McLaughlin today went "over the top," being the first man to receive the required 2,100 certified signatures.

A fact:

At these, the two leading hotels in the Nation's capital, Army and Navy men, statesmen, leaders of industry and prominent men from all sections of the United States may be found in greater numbers, perhaps, than at any other hotels in the country.

At the Willard, Fatima is by far the biggest-selling cigarette—which bears out, once again, what we have been saying all along about the nation-wide preference for this brand.

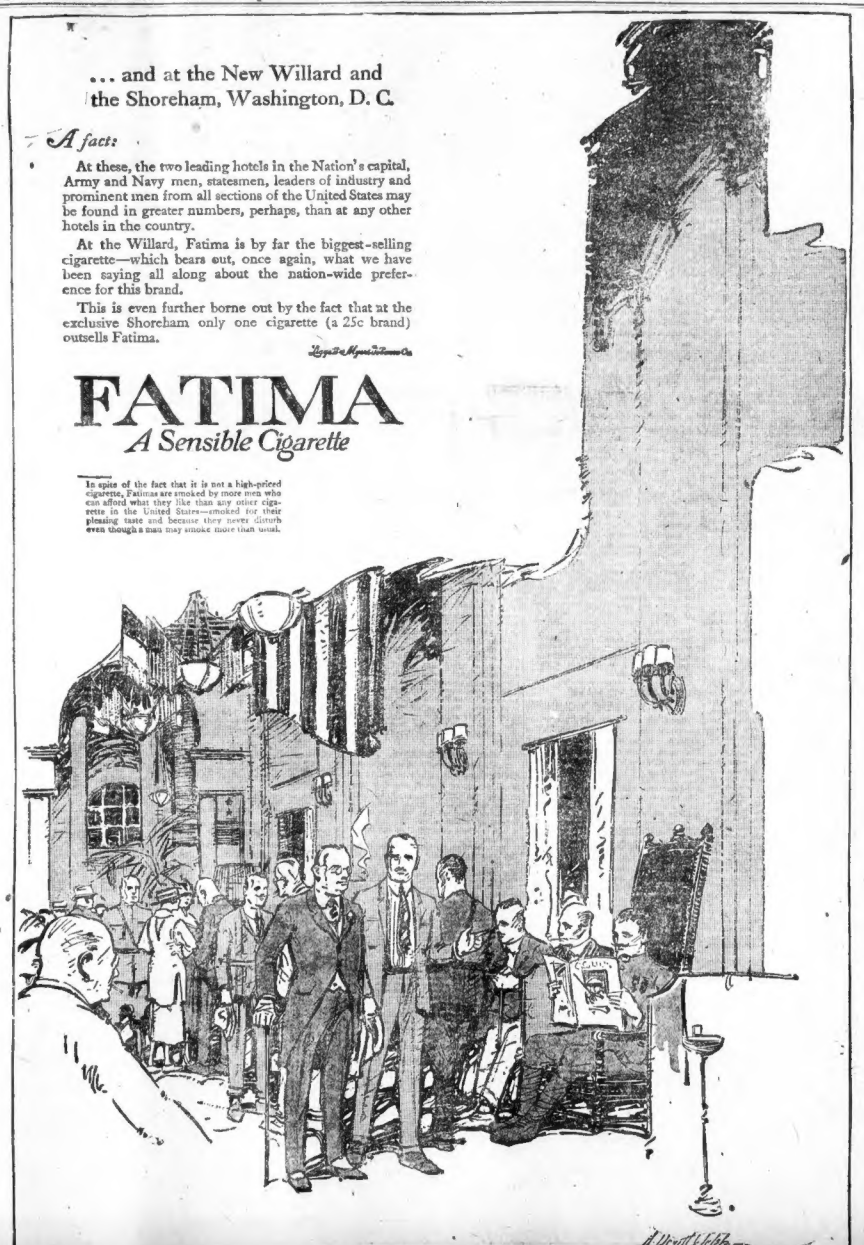
In spite of the fact that it is not a high-priced cigarette, Fatimas are smoked by more men who can afford what they like than any other cigarette in the United States—smoked for their pleasing taste and because they never disturb even though a man may smoke more than usual.



WILSON'S TRIP TO PEACE TABLE GAINS FAVOR

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES.

Washington, Nov. 25.—President Wilson is gradually whipping into line the opposition to his peace council journey, and the indications are that there will be little or no criticism before the day that he is to start.

The President has always played the waiting game with conspicuous success.

One of his standard diplomatic matters has been from the Presbyterian scriptures which sayeth: "Let the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing," "Trust thou in God and in due time," etc.

And he has proven so with all his great war storm tossed legislation over which he was a primary rage and many vain imaginings, but which ultimately came safe to port where he patiently awaited it.

G. O. P. OPPOSITION MELTS.

It is so with his visit to France. The small European flurry of vain imaginings has aptly all subsided.

Even in the Republican ranks in the Senate and the House the accepted fact that the President is surely going is melting opposition into the belief that great good is to be accomplished by his going and that the reasons for the trip now far outweigh the primary objections against it.

The President will by all the indications leave Washington amid the applause and approval and the God-speed of all the people in political or private rank.

Much interest and approval is being manifested here in an editorial quoted from the London Times:

"The thunder which seems to have escaped the general prime."

The Times declares that Wilson is a name to conjure with in Europe now, that the American President has made all Europe idealists now on international affairs and that Europe looks to him to help realize these ideals to help reconstruct out of this welter a better and fairer world.

The Times thinks that even more important than the actual conference will be the discussion by the allied representatives which must precede it. The very appearance of a controversy among friends is a wholesome and encouraging sign. "The fourteen points were not brought down from Mount Sinai but were rather great principles for the consideration and discussion of the nations."

The Times is notably interesting in its comment upon the freedom of the seas. A paragraph or two from the editorial says much:

"Let there be no mistake. If what is meant as freedom of the seas be a real substantial diminution of sea power such as would result by the abolition of a blockade, this country could never consent to it, least of all at the end of the war which could never have been won or continued any length of time without our sea power. It is as well to speak plainly on that point to our American ally, who learned so much in this war about the real meaning of the efficacy of sea power, and America will respect us for plain speaking.

NEED FRANK INTERCHANGE.

"But in this as in all other matters, we do not believe in shibboleth. What matters is the substance not the name. It may well be that submarine mines and air power have substantially affected the conditions under which sea power will be exercised in the future.

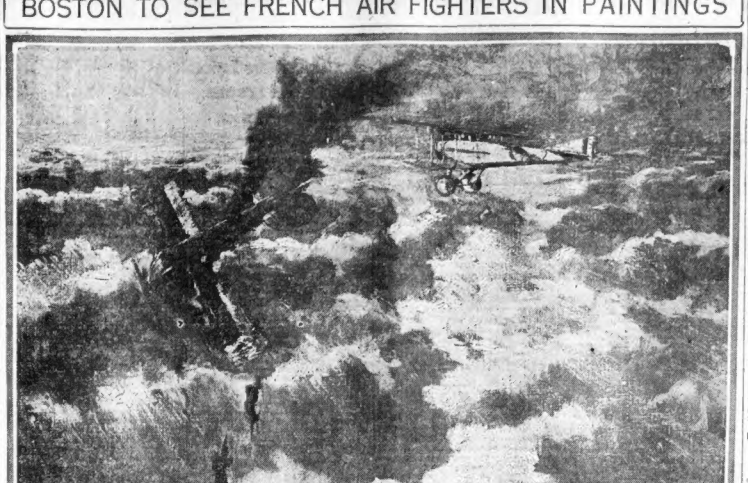
"What we need is a frank interchange of ideas and transference of the discussion from the realm of mere words into the form of actual concrete proposals.

"That is one reason among many why we are glad President Wilson is coming to Europe. We have as much to learn from him as he has to learn from us. It is certain that in perfect understanding between the two great English-speaking peoples the whole world has most to hope."

This comment from such a source spells much of promise for the central policy which carries the President to Europe.

A recuperative diet in influenza, Horlick's Malted Milk very digestible.—Advt.

BOSTON TO SEE FRENCH AIR FIGHTERS IN PAINTINGS



Lieutenant Henri Farre's painting of the forty-fifth air victory of Guynemer. The enemy airplane is shown in a spinning nose dive. Its pilot and observer were thrown out by the violence of the spinning.

Georges Guynemer, the leading Ace of the Allied cause, was one of Lieutenant Henri Farre's chief subjects in his numerous paintings of actual happenings on the French front. Among the 140 canvases which will be exhibited in Horticultural Hall, Dec. 6 to 16, are many which depict Guynemer in one or another of his thrilling air battles.

Others of the French air fighters, as well as some of those Americans who served in the Lafayette Escadrille, are found in the great collection of paintings which the French Government has sent over for exhibition in this country. Society leaders of Boston, who have the exhibition in charge, are confident that a sizable sum will be realized for the orphans of French aviators who gave up their lives for the cause.

Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot has general charge of the arrangements for the exhibition. Both she and Mrs. Russell S. Codman, who is chairman of the executive committee, are enthusiastic over the supplementary showing of the French official films which depict thrilling air battles and other scenes in the great conflict.

It is expected that during his stay here Lieutenant Farre will attend many social functions. The chief event will be the reception tendered him at Horticultural Hall Thursday night, Dec. 5, at 8:30. On that night society, with a brilliant list of patronesses, will have its first view of the films.

GET DRAFT EVADERS WANTED AS SLAYERS

Prince Albert, Sask., Canada, Nov. 25.—A Victor Carmel and Jean Baptiste St. Germain, draft evaders, who murdered Corporal Horsley and James McKay at Steep Creek, and who afterwards defended themselves in self-constructed trenches, were captured in starving condition near the Saskatchewan river Sunday morning, according to information received here today. The men were found hiding in a straw stack on the north bank of the river and were taken without a struggle. They were very weak from hunger and exposure.

10,000 LETTERS HERE FROM BOYS "OVER THERE"

Three sacks, containing 10,000 letters from the boys "over there," arrived today for delivery in the Boston postal district, and Thomas Feeney, in charge of the incoming mail, lost no time in getting the letters to the addressees, which include fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters and sweethearts. In addition to these letters, there were received four sacks of parcel post matter and three sacks of photographs and books. The mail came from Bordeaux by way of New York.

TAYLOR, MONSON BANDIT, HAS BEEN RECAPTURED

Greenfield, Nov. 25.—Claude Taylor, the notorious Monson bandit, who escaped from the Connecticut State prison at Wethersfield some weeks ago, has been recaptured. Word was received here today by Chief of Police Thomas Manning that Taylor had been taken at Millerstville, N. Y., and with him an automobile belonging to Mrs. Zira R. Grout, of No. 81 High street, this town.

BORDEN ASKS RETURN OF ANZACS THROUGH CANADA

Montreal, Nov. 24.—Premier Borden of Canada will extend an invitation to the authorities of Australia and New Zealand for at least one battalion of each army to return home by way of Canada. If the invitation is accepted, the battalions will be the guests of the Dominion while passing through the country.

NEW YORK NOW SURE OF UNITED WAR FUND QUOTA

New York, Nov. 25.—Workers of the United War work campaign were confident today that with the final extension of the drive they had succeeded in obtaining New York's quota of $35,000,000. Among the largest of the latest contributions were an additional $50,000 from the Standard Oil Company and $25,000 from the Consolidated Gas Company.

NEW CARGO SHIP NAMED FOR THE LAMBS' CLUB

Kearney, N. J., Nov. 25.—More than 500 members of the Lambs' Club witnessed the launching here yesterday of a 10,000-ton cargo ship, which was named The Lambs, after their club. Mrs. R. S. Gill, wife of Captain Gill, the first "Lamb" killed in the war, was sponsor.

NEW MINISTER FROM HOLLAND ARRIVES

New York, Nov. 25.—J. Theodore Cramer, newly appointed Minister from Holland, arrived here on the steamer Hollandia. The vessel was held up at Quarantine, but Minister and Mrs. Cramer were brought ashore by tug. They will proceed to Washington tomorrow.

BOYS HELD FOR LOOTING HOUSE AT WINTHROP

One of the most daring daylight robberies in Winthrop, occurring at the home of Herbert Jordan, No. 58 Brookfield road, has resulted in the arrest of Meirin Cobb, of Bennington street, East Boston, and Nicholas Alterison, of Everett street, East Boston, and warrants have been issued for the arrest of three other boys.

The five boys, all about fourteen years of age, are accused of breaking into the Jordan home. Melville Tewksbury, who lives in the rear, saw some boys enter the home of Mr. Jordan, and gave the alarm. The intruders made hurried attempts to get away. Cobb, it is charged, jumped from the second story window of the house into the arms of Tewksbury, but got away, as Tewksbury grabbed Alterison. Cobb was later found in the home of Wellington Douglas, on Court street, where he attempted to hide in the cellar.

Money and jewelry to the amount of $230 is missing from the Jordan home. Cobb and Alterison were arraigned today before Judge Barnes in the East Boston Court, and were held in $500 each until Wednesday. Warrants have been issued for the other three boys, who are known to the police.

URGE PEACE MOVIES BE SOLD IN OPEN MARKET

New York, Nov. 25.—Selling in open market of the American rights to motion pictures of the coming peace conference, has been proposed to President Wilson by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company. Mr. Smith suggested that part of the proceeds be devoted to a motion picture museum and projection hall for storing and exhibiting of the best war pictures.

MEDFORD DAMAGE SUIT SETTLED OUT OF COURT

A suit for $1,000 brought by Florence S. Slack, of Medford, daughter of Mrs. Florence E. Slack, against the Medford Ice Company, has been settled for $378.25. She alleged that on June 8, while on Marion street, Medford, she was severely injured when some cakes of ice from one of the company's wagons fell upon her.

SAYS COAL WAS STORED TO KEEP PRICE UP

By International News Service.

Washington, Nov. 24.—With J. B. Neale, director of anthracite production for the fuel administration on the stand, Senator Reed attempted to prove today that anthracite operators always have limited coal production in order to keep up prices.

Neale, himself a millionaire coal operator, contended that anthracite operators prior to the period of governmental supervision always were able to meet the demand.

"But there never was a surplus," Reed observed. "There never was a surplus put on the market. The coal was stored if it was evident too much had been produced, in order to keep up prices," Reed added.

CONTROLLED BY BIG SEVEN.

Seventy per cent. of the anthracite is produced by seven railroad coal companies, Neale said. They are in the order of their importance as producers, the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company, the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the Delaware & Hudson and the Scranton Coal Company.

Reed brought out that these companies issued a circular setting prices for each month of the year beginning April 1.

Wholesalers were allowed a profit of fifteen cents a ton on prepared sizes and ten cents a ton on other coal by the companies, Neale explained.

PLENTY OF LABOR THEN.

"Was there any difficulty in getting labor before the war?" Reed asked.

Neale replied that there was not.

"Then that did not limit production?"

"Production was regulated by the law of supply and demand," said Neale.

"The coal operators always were able to meet the demand before the war."

"At the prices they set?"

"At the prices they set," Neale agreed.

An Oriental Rug may be all that is needed to "dress up" the dining room. Paine's prices are reasonable and quality beyond question.

New Curtains and Draperies will do much toward the brightening of nearly any room.

Knowing what to do is most essential here. That's the business of Paine's able salesmen.

Hemstitched Scrim Curtains $3.50 a pair.

Unusual cretonnes, in widest variety, 75c a yard upward.

Imported printed linens, real lace curtains, portieres, table covers and a host of other things in Paine's Drapery Shop.

The men—the materials—the entire facilities and equipment of this favorite Boston home outfitting store stand ready to be of service to New England homes.

MAINE FIREMEN HELP GET NAVAL FUGITIVE

York Harbor, Me., Nov. 25.—Seamen who escaped from the U. S. Prison Ship Southery last Friday were rounded up here after the village fire department had surrounded a swamp and compelled the third man to give himself up. Samuel S. Thible, twenty-nine; Andrew Studenowski, twenty-one, and William Lesman, who escaped from the ship, took possession of an unoccupied house here. Deputy Sheriff H. Grant Dutt surprised the three men and captured two of them. The other escaped and ran to a swamp. Dunn called out the fire department.

FIRST DANVERS BOYS TO GIVE LIVES AT FRONT

Danvers, Nov. 25.—Word has been received of the deaths of the first two boys from this town to be killed in action in France, Privates Ralph Kenyon, eighteen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Knowlton of Centre street, and Hadley M. McPhetres, twenty-six years old, a brother of Mrs. Fred M. Blanchard of No. 20 Oak street. They were killed October 21 when a box of captured German ammunition accidentally exploded. They were members of Battery E, 101st Field Artillery.

ADVANCE DEBS HEARING TO MONDAY, JANUARY 6

Washington, Nov. 25.—The Supreme Court of the United States, responding to a government motion this afternoon, advanced the espionage cases of Eugene V. Debs, James A. Peterson and Jacob Prohwerk for hearing Monday, January 6. An early hearing of these cases was desired by the government, since the espionage act under which the convictions were obtained, becomes ineffective with the conclusion of peace.

SANFORDS GINGER

Pure and best of warming stomachics for colds, chills, grip or influenza. Comforts weak stomachs, bowels, and nerves. Protects the traveler. Keep it on hand. When in doubt take a dose. Always helpful and healthful.

Look for Our Trade Mark on the wrapper. Don't take a substitute.—Advertisement.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" CHILD'S LAXATIVE

Look at tongue! Remove poisons from stomach, liver and bowels

Accept "California" Syrup of Figs only—look for the name California on the package. Then you are sure your child is having the best and most harmless laxative or physic for the little stomach, liver and bowels. Children love its delicious, fruity taste. Full directions for child's dose on each bottle. Give it without fail.—Advertisement.

Curious About M——L——?

It Stands for the Best Cold, Cough and Catarrh Medicine Ever Discovered, Which Is

Mentho-Laxene

Mentho-Laxene has been on the market eight years. It is a concentrated compound of healing, soothing, curative extracts to be mixed at home with granulated sugar syrup —a full pint—or it may be taken in doses of ten drops on sugar. The "laxative by those who do not like sweet syrup.

The very first dose brings wonderful relief in head or chest colds of children or adults. Every bottle sold is guaranteed to please or money back by the Smith-Auburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio.

It is economy to make a full pint. Much cheaper than buying ready-made cough or cold remedies—besides, you cannot buy a more effective medicine anywhere. One bottle will last a season for most families, and it checks or aborts a bad cold if taken promptly. Every well stocked druggist supplies Mentho-Laxene. Don't take a substitute—for your sake.—Advertisement.

10,000 ATTEND MANOEUVRES AT DEVENS

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Nov. 25.—Fully 10,000 persons, including a large percentage of women, today attended the opening of the three-days military manoeuvres of the Plymouth Division on the combat field.

There was continuous firing of machine guns, automatic rifles, one-pounders and trench mortars. The cannonading could be heard for miles. Colonel Ira Smith was in charge.

A feature of the afternoon exercises was the singing of 20,000 soldiers led by a regimental band.

Sergeant Harry Berg of G Company, 73rd infantry, who pleaded guilty before a court-martial board of violating the 36th artile of war, was today sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, to forfeit all pay and allowances due or to become due, and to be confined at hard labor at the military prison at Atlanta, Ga., for five years. He was charged with bigamy.

A board was appointed today to meet here to examine into and report upon the capacity, qualifications, conduct and efficiency of such provisional and temporary officers of the regular army as may be ordered to appear before it, and to make recommendations as to the suitability and fitness of such officers for promotion and appointment.

The personnel office of the Depot Brigade was kept busy to-day making arrangements for demobilization.

It was learned to-day that all company funds must be turned over to the army when the men are demobilized.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards is expected here Wednesday as guest of Major-General McCain to witness the military manoeuvres.

Million Letters From Boys Overseas Reach America

New York, Nov. 25.—A million letters from "our boys" overseas that will gladden the hearts of the "folks back home" reached America on the French liner Rochambeau.

The thousands of bags containing the mail were rushed to the New York Postoffice and the delivery of what is believed to be the Thanksgiving correspondence of the American expeditionary forces was started at once. There is something for somebody in every State—and something for somebody in almost every town—in the big pouches.

CAMBRIDGE K. OF C. TO FETE SERVICE MEN

Cambridge Council, No. 74, Knights of Columbus, is going to give enlisted men in the army and navy the time of their lives tonight. At the Elks' ball room, Cambridgeport, a smoker will be held which will include boxing and wrestling, vaudeville, eats and smokes.

Grand Knight John C. Haverty is chairman of a big committee in charge of the affair and he welcomes all uniformed men in the University City.

K CO., 73D INFANTRY HOLDS BALL AT CHELSEA

K Company of the Seventy-third Infantry will stage a grand military ball at the State Armory, Chelsea, Wednesday night. The Seventy-third Infantry Band of forty-night pieces will display its musical talents during proceedings.

Lee Soldier Killed in Action

Lee, Nov. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Noonan of Centre street were today notified by the War Department that their son, Charles P. Noonan, aged 19, dispatch-bearer in the overseas forces, was killed in action November 11. His parents have three other sons and four daughters.

RADIO MEN OFF ON TEN-DAY FURLOUGHS

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Nov. 25.—Radio school today was somewhat depleted in personnel owing to the number of leaves of absence granted to applicants for ten-day furloughs in order that they might spend Thanksgiving at home.

According to present arrangements three furlough periods are at the disposal of students.

The first period is from November 23 until December 2. The second period will be from December 21 to December 30, and the third will include December 26 to January 6.

Students who desire furloughs will be required to make their applications for one of the three periods.

Travel time in excess of the furlough periods will not be granted, it was announced.

A call has gone forth to men from all branches of the service to aid in the Thanksgiving day hospitalities at the Boston House. Service men to act as ushers, musicians and to help in the serving of refreshments have been asked to volunteer.

A special Thanksgiving service was held at Sanders Theatre, Memorial Hall, at 9 o'clock Sunday. The Rev. Albert Parker Fitch of Amherst College delivered the sermon.

MUSTEROLE—QUICK RELIEF! NO BLISTER!

It Soothes and Relieves Like a Mustard Plaster Without the Burn or Sting

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and usually the pain is gone!

Many doctors and nurses use Musterole and recommend it to their patients. They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

MUSTEROLE WILL NOT BLISTER!

PREVENT INFLUENZA

If you are "run down" or out of condition, if digestive beasts have allowed poisonous impurities to accumulate in your system, you are liable to suffer severely with the influenza. Dr. True's Elixir, the famous household medicine of 67 years' reputation, may ward off the influenza or make an attack light and easily thrown off. Why? Because is a vegetable medicine that puts the system in good condition, prevents and relieves you quickly, stimulates the appetite and improves the digestive powers. If you do not have it in a nearby vegetable. Ask your druggist for it or write Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. 40c, 80c and $1.00.

The Heart of Democracy

It is said, Lo, here and Lo, there is Democracy—in the street, on the railway train, at the political meeting, at the Chautauqua, and the like.

But all of those places fall short of universality. There are but two places where all men are equal; where princes and pauper meet on a common level.

For dead ones, it is the grave.

For live ones, it is the Want Ad column of the newspaper.

* * *

To the Want Ad column comes the man seeking employment, and the man seeking some one to employ.

Come Mistress and Maid.

Come Bargains and Hunters.

Come Empty and Surfeited.

Come Eager and Indifferent.

Come Learned and Unlettered.

Come the Poor to get things and the Rich to get rid of things.

Come one and all who have nowhere else to come, to find their want and the sating thereof.

* * *

The need of the Hungry,

The Whim of the Indifferent,

The Satisfaction of the Curious,

The Eagerness of the Desperate and

The Unloading of the Surplus.

* * *

Have you ever thought of the thousands upon thousands of eyes that search among the Want Ads every day in the paper.

As treasure hunters for gold,

As trappers for game,

As shepherds for lost sheep,

As eagles for their food?

* * *

Have you ever realized the tremendous human interest in this Heart of Humanity, daily exposed, quick with desire, keen from sharp need?

Each little Ad is a Human Cry.

Behind each terse appeal is an anxious mind.

It all reads dully enough—cold and commercial, sordid, perhaps, but to you who have imagination it rises like the sound of a vast multitude, a voice "as the voice of many waters."

Every one of the Want Ads in this paper was written by Somebody with a Real Need.

Every one of these Want Ads will be read by a dozen or more with Real Needs.

No part of this paper means more, no part ministers more genuinely to the public, than the Want Ad columns.

1,200,000 MEN OUT OF ARMY BY JAN. 1

Discharges at Rate of 32,000 a Day Scheduled for First Month

Washington, Nov. 25. — One million two hundred thousand soldiers out of the service by January 1 is the estimate of army officers who are in touch with the mustering out process.

It is calculated that approximately 32,000 will be the figure from the first of December until January 1, and after the latter day the rate will probably be about 50,000 a day.

General March went to Camp Dix to give instructions which, it is understood, will expedite the muster out with due regard for the preparation and forwarding to the adjutant-general's office at Washington of the personal records of each soldier. It is reasonably certain, therefore, that there will be room at the cantonments for 1,000,000 overseas troops early in the year.

It has been announced that about 250,000 have been designated for return by General Pershing, but it is not unlikely that the next announcements will give the names of many other divisions to be returned. At the present time there are on the way over not only the 10,000 troops released from training duty in England, but a steady stream of the sick and the wounded from France and England who are able to make the voyage.

Officers think that by the Spring the whole grand army, except those needed for police duty in Europe, will have started home. As the men will be entitled to wear their uniforms only about three months after discharge, the uniformed soldier will have disappeared by early Summer.

There probably will be many enlistments in the regulars, who will be re-assembled into an army as big as Congress will stand.

The 10,000 American troops now on the seas, trying to get to this country by Thanksgiving Day, left British ports on November 19 and may make it.

It was stated that they are the aero squadrons mentioned by numbers by General March. They have been in training at English flying fields and had nearly completed their course. They were to be sent over to man the first shipment of fighting planes from the United States.

Staff officers believe that they will be landed at New York, of course, and will go to the Mineola camp, where they will be mustered out in as short a time as possible.

DR. BARTON TELLS NEEDS OF ARMENIAN REFUGEES

Dr. James L. Barton, formerly of the American College in Turkey, and William B. Millar of New York, director general of the coming Armenian-Syrian Relief drive for $30,000,000, emphasized with astounding facts the vast needs of the exiled people, while addressing New England members of the organization at a conference at the City Club today. "There are 2,950,000 people scattered throughout Asia-Minor, Northern Africa, Arabia and Serbia, who are dependent upon the Armenian-Syrian Relief organization," declared Dr. Barton. Dr. Barton read a letter from Cardinal O'Connell in which the cardinal declared he expected Catholics as well as Protestants to help in the coming drive.

HELD IN $500 FOR SALE OF LIQUOR TO SOLDIER

The first case of its kind to come before United States Commissioner Hayes came today when Albert Sidlinger of Stafford street was arraigned on the charge of aiding and abetting the sale of liquor to a soldier. Sidlinger is a drug clerk, and it is alleged that he negotiated the sale of liquor in that capacity. He was held in $500 for a hearing on Wednesday before Commissioner Hayes.

PLAN MEMORIAL TO THE LATE W. P. FOWLER

Plans to raise a $10,000 fund in memory of the late William P. Fowler, in view of his thirty years of charitable work here without pay, are being made by friends. Courtenay Guild, George T. Cruft and William S. B. Stevens are a committee in charge, and William Atherton is treasurer, to whom checks may be sent, No. 15 Exchange street.

VOTE TO CALL STRIKE AT ATLANTIC WORKS

At a meeting of Machinists' Union, Local 264, it was voted to empower the grievance committee of the Waterfront Council to call an immediate strike of the more than 600 mechanics employed at the Atlantic Works, East Boston, if the management does not grant the men the award made by the War Labor Board.

PLAN STANDARDS FOR MOTOR GASOLINE

Demand for Transport Grade Has Increased Since the Armistice Was Signed

Washington, Nov. 25.—The United States Fuel Administration is considering fixing of standards of quality for domestic motor gasoline.

This was indicated in a statement in which the demand for motor transport grade of "gas" was declared to have increased since the signing of the armistice. The demand for aviation grades has greatly decreased. These two grades form the bulk of the overseas demand for the American product.

The overseas demand and domestic requirement, the administration says, have a considerable bearing upon any decision to fix a standard of quality for domestic motor gasoline.

Ability to supply and consideration of prices of all petroleum products which are directly affected by any alteration of gasoline grades also are cited as factors.

The administration says it has at hand the results of a very exhaustive investigation of gasoline, and a decision as to fixing standards is indicated as being imminent.

ASK FOR PERMITS ON GERMAN PATENTS

Washington, Nov. 23.—Request for five licenses to use German-owned or controlled patents, covering acids, dyes and the process for making them, was today made of the Federal Trade Commission by the Du Pont Powder Company of Wilmington, Del. The patents referred to were issued by the United States patent office at time from 1902 to 1908 to assignors of a German firm of Ludwigshaven-on-the-Rhine, Germany.

ARMY AVIATORS FOR NEW AIR MAIL SERVICE

New York, Nov. 25.—Several hundred aviators have applied for positions in the aerial mail service in the next few days. The flood of applications followed announcement that army aviators must either resign their commissions or join the regular army. Alan R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America, has urged Secretary Baker that fifty mail lines, employing 1,000 airmen and 500 aeroplanes, can be established at any time.

THREE YEARS TO RESTORE FRENCH MINES

Washington, Nov. 25.—It will take from eight months to three years to put the coal mines at Lens, France, back into their pre-war condition according to a cablegram received this afternoon by Fuel Administrator Garfield. The cablegram was from a number of American engineers who made a preliminary survey of these mines at the request of the fuel administration.

How Would You Like to Be?

By MORTON BIRGE

2—The Motorman.

Easy for the motorman, riding 'round the town;
Either he is standing up or he's sitting down.
With one foot incessantly ding-ding-dong he goes,
But what bells exercise for the foot and toes.

Kiddies dart in front of him. Has to have a care
Lest he hit a child and get trouble then and there.
Nice old ladies lose their wits in his very path,
Pour upon the motorman vials of aged wrath.

Teamsters occupy the track, make the trolley wait.
Foreman at the carbarn yelps: "Gee, but you were late!"
Has to think of track ahead, power, brake and bell;
Had enough in Summer time. Winter's simply swell.

"Spotters" up and down the line landing on his neck.
Never knows what's coming next. How about a wreck?
First upon the "injured" list, first to get the blame.
Easy for the motorman—if you like the game.

BAVARIA PUTS WAR BLAME ON GERMANY

By International News Service.

Paris, Nov. 25.—Full blame for the war is laid upon Germany by Kurt Eisner, head of the new Bavarian republic, who is making public state documents to confirm his accusations.

"I blame Germany, and the German people agree with me," declared Eisner at Munich, according to a Basle dispatch to the Petit Parisien today.

The first of the documents promised by the head of the South German republic to prove the culpability of the central powers has just been made public. It is a memorandum from the Bavarian minister at Berlin, dated July 13, 1914, stating that the Berlin government had determined upon sending an ultimatum to Serbia.

The ultimatum was postponed, the memorandum said, to enable President Poincare of France and M. Viviani of the French cabinet, to get out of Petrograd, where they were paying an official visit.

It was recognized in Berlin at the time that Serbia could not accept the terms of the ultimatum.

Herr Eisner claims the discovery of other important diplomatic documents. The Bavarian President demands that southern Germany have her own voice in the peace conference and that Berlin shall not speak for the Southern States.

The Austro-Hungarian ultimatum to Serbia was despatched on July 23, 1914.

GIVE MILLIONS OF ARTICLES TO SOLDIERS

Washington, Nov. 25.—How the women of America have contributed toward making things comfortable for Uncle Sam's boys overseas is told in a report just made public by the War Council of the American Red Cross.

A total of 391,874,000 necessary articles have been produced by American women. These include 253,196,000 surgical dressings, 14,989,000 knitted articles, 1,054,000 refugee garments and 22,225,000 hospital garments and supplies.

Practically every American soldier who has been abroad and many of those who were not so fortunate as to get across, have received some of these articles, sweaters, socks, mufflers, helmets, wristlets, etc.

The work of the Red Cross still is to go on. It is the aim of the organization to similarly supply allied troops who will not be disbanded for some time, soldiers who will remain in American training camps during the coming Winter, and thousands of impoverished refugees in the war stricken districts.

Since America entered the war millions of yards of gauze, a hundred million yards of fabric and millions of pounds of yarn have been purchased and made into useful garments for the use of our soldiers and sailors and for the Allies.

A.F. OF L. AGAINST STRIKES FOR MOONEY

Believe Such Tactics Would Injure Rather Than Help Condemned Man

Washington, Nov. 25.—The American Federation of Labor is not in sympathy with the strikes reported threatened in protest against the pending execution of Thomas J. Mooney.

Officers of the Federation are doing all in their power to effect executive clemency for Mooney because they believe there is a reasonable doubt of his guilt.

They are opposed to the use of the strike weapon because they believe that such tactics tend more to injure than help Mooney's chances for a new trial.

This statement of the attitude of the American Federation of Labor was made by Frank Morrison, secretary of that body, who has just returned from the labor conference on the Mexican border.

"Those who are declaring for strikes in sympathy with Mooney," Mr. Morrison declared, "are infected with I. W. Wism or are supporters of Berger of Milwaukee.

"The Densmore report disclosing a conviction fund of $410,000 and the fact that perjured testimony was admitted would indicate that Mooney ought to have another trial. I understand that the judge in the case is in favor of a new trial.

"We have been opposed all along to any strike against the action of the court, believing such a course would injure rather than help Mooney's chances, but we are doing what we can to influence the extension of executive clemency in some form, whether it be the granting of a new trial, pardon or setting aside of the death penalty."

Accuser of Mooney's Prosecutor Is Missing as Grand Jury Meets

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 25.—With the meeting of the county grand jury called to investigate charges of corruption made by J. B. Densmore, Director-General of Employment under the United States Department of Labor, against District Attorney C. M. Fickert and other county officials in connection with the Mooney case, only a few hours away, all efforts to locate Densmore and serve him with a subpoena to appear before the grand jury have been fruitless.

Densmore is to be the star witness in the investigation, but since his report was made public all process servers have failed to locate him, although this city as well as the cities on the other side of the bay have been combed by bailiffs and deputies in an effort to serve him with a subpoena. He is registered at a local hotel, but he has not been seen for several days.

Governor William D. Stephens flatly refused to comment on the report of Densmore. When asked whether he would instruct Attorney-General Webb to conduct an investigation of the charges, the Governor, through his private secretary, Martin Madsen, said he had no comment whatsoever to make. Neither would the Governor intimate what action he proposed to take with regard to a commutation of sentence for Mooney.

The International Association of Machinists, San Francisco Local No. 68, voted on the proposition to strike in behalf of Mooney. The vote was secret, but E. D. Nolan, secretary of the International Workers' Defence League, stated that ninety-six per cent. of the members favored the strike. Dec. 9 has been tentatively set as the day for the strike, but a definite day will be fixed later. Nolan says the vote today represents 8,000 machinists.

The San Francisco Labor Council and the State Federation of Labor have named ten delegates to ask executive clemency at the hands of Governor Stephens.

Germany Extolled as Best Educated Nation by Harlem Socialist

New York, Nov. 25.—At a gathering of 2,000 Harlem Socialists here Germany was extolled as the "best educated nation on earth," and announcement was made that another meeting will be held tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden to "celebrate the German republic and to protest against the execution of Thomas J. Mooney."

Speakers declared if Mooney is hanged, labor will reply with a nation-wide strike.

Appeals for cash to send speakers through the country "so we can catch up with Russia," met with a collection of $112.68.

BOSTON FROWNS UPON MOONEY PROTEST STRIKE

The labor unions of Boston, outside of a number of unions composed almost entirely of foreigners, do not believe that the move on the Pacific Coast to declare a general strike as a protest against sending "Tom" Mooney of San Francisco to death for complicity in the Preparedness Day bomb plot will ever result in a suspension of work in this city.

Leaders of the United Hebrew Trades are doing all in their power to awaken interest in the general strike call, but leaders of the big organizations affiliated with the A. F. of L. Boston Central Labor Union and the Allied Trades do not countenance a move of this kind.

TO DISCHARGE HALF OF SECOND NAVAL DISTRICT

Newport, R. I., Nov. 25.—The Second Naval District has been ordered by the Navy Department to discharge 50 per cent. of the enlisted personnel of the navy and the naval reserve in the Second District, enlisted for the duration of the war.

All the men will be given an opportunity to re-enlist for four years if they so desire.

The district, extending from Chatham, Mass., to New London, Ct., includes numerous bases and training schools, some of which will be discontinued. The present personnel of the district is estimated at about 20,000 men.

POLICE WAR AGAINST STOLEN CAR RIDES

The police of Dorchester have started a crusade against young boys who steal rides on the rear of trolley cars. Numerous arrests have been made in an effort to stop the nuisance in the district. Many boys have been injured on account of the practice, and at least two deaths have occurred from accidents.

HE DARKENED HIS GRAY HAIR

They Used to Call Him Grandpa; Now They Call Him Kid.

Tells How He Did It.

Mr. J. A. McCrea, a well known resident of San Francisco, who was called Daddy and Grandpa on account of his white hair, and who darkened it with a simple home-made mixture, recently made the following statement:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This is not a dye, it does not color the scalp, it does not make scalp sticky or greasy and does not rub off. My friends now call me 'Kid'."

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—There's no excuse for having a sallow complexion — dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes — no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 30c and 60c per box. All druggists.

FAVOR USE OF SUBSTITUTES FOR BUTTER

Oleomargarine and Nut Oleo Offer Hope as Price of Butter Soars

By the primrose path of oleomargarine;

By the roseate byways of the nut oleo;

By ways devious and mysterious and delightful (if you believe all you hear) of pure animal and vegetable substitutes for the good old-fashioned butter your mother used to put in between the hot biscuits;

By these alone shall the son of man, and the daughter of man as well, preserve yet enough of the good old original to show posterity what butter used to be like.

Which, briefly means, that if Mrs. Housewife wishes to ease the butter situation and save herself a lot of money into the bargain, she will buy oleomargarine and nut oleo. "Tis the only way, so the doctors declare, to keep butter from mounting like a rocket, higher even than today.

FAVORS SUBSTITUTES.

"Use substitutes," suggested the head of the firm of one of the largest butter houses in town. "As a butter man I predict a general resort to these. It is the only way out."

To which Mrs. Housewife wrinkles up her nose and answers, doubting, "Substitutes," saith she, "ah, um, hem, substitutes! I had never thought. You know, that substitutes were used by our really best families. What might the neighbors say? Come now, please remember we have a position in society to maintain."

It is this prejudice of Mrs. Housewife which, according to the wholesale dealer, is adding butter sky high.

"Now the substitutes," as the gentleman explains, "are two. Oleomargarine, and nut oleo. Of old there has been a prejudice against them, particularly the oleo. Yet, in its composition, enter purest food materials, used every day by every family, in its daily menu. Oleomargarine, costing from thirty-five to thirty-eight cents a pound, is made up of beef fat, "neutral" butter, salt, and water, churned in fresh sweet milk. It is excellent for cooking.

"Nut margarine, on the other hand, is made of nut oils, cocoanut oil mostly, also churned in fresh, sweet milk. It cost from three to five cents less than oleomargarine, and is excellent for table use."

PRODUCTION AT LOWEST.

Which leads to certain foibles of the great American buying public.

We are now, as all the doctors agree, at the worst season of the year for butter. Production has practically ceased. Storage butter has been devastatingly reduced by Government commandeering. There is less butter in the country for sale than there has been for years. And there is the increased demand upon the scanty stores caused by prevailing high wages.

Witness the typical scene at a wholesale butter store. A man, in overalls, entered. "I want a ten-pound tub of butter," said he.

"Couldn't you," asked the wholesaler, who knew how the supply meets the demand, "couldn't you make five pounds do?"

The workman squared his shoulders and stepped forward in injured emphasis.

"Bet your sweet life I can't," said he, bragging. "I have the money to pay for ten pounds of butter at sixty-three cents a pound, and it's ten pounds of butter I'm going to have."

Which he got. The human stories, of people in poorer circumstances cutting into their own and having just what they want, regardless of cost, repeats itself. On a street in Arlington, at one end, are the homes of two managers of factories, men on comfortable salaries, whose families are using nut margarine.

"Sixty cents a pound doesn't interest," said a New Hampshire farmer. "If I can make seventy-seven by turning the same amount of milk into cheese; and I can make still more by selling the milk fresh, to the condenseries. So I should worry. Sixty cents a pound for butter is dirt cheap," he finished, loftily.

"Cheap!" sighs Mrs. Housewife. "Cheap! Just tell me about that substitute. Maybe, after all, I will look into the matter."

LITERARY CIRCLES STIRRED BY PRATT DIVORCE SUIT

Mrs. Albert Houghton Pratt (on right), who has brought divorce proceedings which involve well-known widow and author.

Boston literary circles have been stirred by the divorce proceedings which involve Albert Houghton Pratt, a nephew of Albert P. Houghton of Houghton, Mifflin Company, publishers, of No. 4 Park street. Mrs. Pratt has named Mrs. E. Mildred Parma, a widow, and author of "My Tussle With the Devil, by O. Henry's Ghost."

At the trial in New York, witnesses told of a moonlit sleeping porch in a bungalow at Atlantic City, where it was alleged Mrs. Parma occupied quarters adjoining those of Mr. Pratt. Testimony was to the effect that the two were seen on the porch in scanty attire. All charges were denied by both Mr. Pratt and Mrs. Parma.

MRS. J. T. C.—All department commanders, post and fort commanders have been instructed to grant immediate discharge from the army to enlisted men who make application for same, with evidence that their presence in the army involves distress or hardship to their families, or when needed on account of sickness at home or when there is urgent need for them to resume some employment in industry. Application for discharge must be made by the soldier concerned through his commanding officer. Any man who voluntarily enlisted prior to April 1, 1917, will be discharged.

J. B.—Field clerks who were promoted to army captains during the war will be reduced in rank after the coming of peace. Officers of the regular army promoted to higher rank on being transferred to the National Army will assume their old rank on being returned to the regular army after the signing of the peace treaty.

SOLDIER'S MOTHER—If you do not receive allotments regularly, go to the seventh floor of the War Risk Insurance Department at No. 99 Chauncy street and state your case to Captain Johnson.

J. L.—The only branch of the service in which a man can now enlist for four years is the Marine Corps, and then only for young men of eighteen who registered on or before September 12. Enlistments will be received by Captain Bernard J. Doherty, No. 22 Tremont row.

A. B.—In the United States army the strength of a company is 256 men; of a regiment of infantry, 3,755; of a division, 27,152 men, and of an army corps 185,000 men.

MISS D. C. L.—Ask the War Department to find the location of the regiment to which you refer.

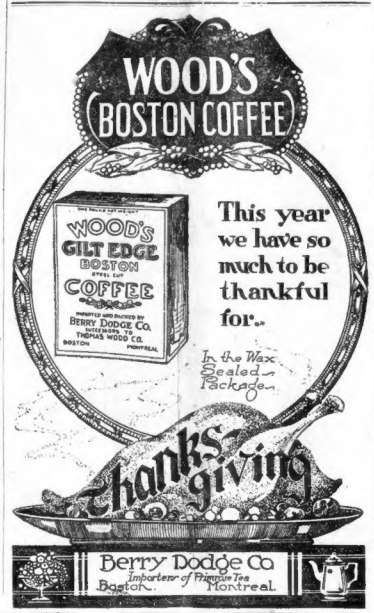
BILLIONS SAVED BY CANCELLING WORK ABROAD

Paris, Nov. 25.—The American army is cancelling billions of dollars worth of orders for work in Europe. Tremendous items that had been ordered in the departments of railroads, warehouses, forestry and base port services on the basis of providing for an army of 4,000,000 Americans, have become unnecessary.

The biggest work now is, and will be, that of preparing nine base ports for handling the traffic both ways.

Evacuation of wounded Americans is already under way.

All clothing contracts placed in England and Spain have been cancelled. Air service construction here has been stopped. The railroad program has been reduced to 2,500 locomotives and 61,000 cars.



WITH AMERICAN AVIATORS IN FRANCE, Sept. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press) ". . . . the aviators went silently to their quarters for their great, heavy Arctic clothing. In the turn of a hand they were back on the field, swathing and swaddling themselves to the eyes, tucking chocolate in their pockets (for they get hungry up in the air), or breaking open a fresh package of chewing gum, which helps to alleviate nervousness, and has a steadying effect."

Mildred Expresses the Opinion That Young Hilton Is a Genuine Man of the World

CHAPTER XI.

"WON'T you come in?" Honora said as she and Arthur Bruce reached her gate. "I'd like to," Arthur replied. "Do you know," with a wistful look, "that you have helped me a lot? When I met you I was very blue, but an new much brighter. You are quite a wonder as a cheerer, Honora."

"Won't you come in?" she repeated. "I would be very glad to have you do so."

His expression changed. "Others might not be," he remarked.

The girl seemed not to understand. "Mrs. Higgins is always glad to see you, and nobody else is here. You know Mrs. Higgins considers you an extremely nice young man," she added teasingly, with a light laugh.

"Perhaps she does," he smiled, "but I fancy she has found me a bit of a nuisance at times. But if you say, not I withdraw my statement."

Honora knew he had been thinking of Mildred, and of her only, but she pretended to believe that Mrs. Higgins had been the person he had had in mind.

"Since I have set you fears at rest on that score, come on into the house," she suggested once more, opening the gate.

He started to follow her, when the sound of an automobile coming rapidly up the street made the pair pause and turn around.

"It's Mr. Hilton's car," Honora remarked. "Can he be bringing Milly home? But no—at least that is not Mr. Chauffeur with her on the front seat."

"Whoever he is, he drives like the devil!" Arthur observed. With a sudden grinding of brakes, the car drew up sharply at the curb. The driver sprang out, then held out his hand to Mildred.

"I don't know who he is," Honora remarked sotto voce.

She was not to remain long in ignorance. Her sister hurried forward, bringing the young man with her.

"Honora," her manner excited and her eyes shining, "I want you to know Mr. Hilton. He's Mr. John Hilton's nephew, you know. He's going to Canada in a day or two to enlist."

Honora bowed, repeated the stranger's name as she took hands with him, then, turning to Arthur, said:

A Giggling Girl

"Mr. Hilton, allow me to introduce our friend, Mr. Bruce."

"Glad to meet you, Mr. Bruce," young Hilton said genially. "I have just been giving myself the pleasure, Miss Brent, of bringing your sister home. I dropped into my uncle's office and found he was not ready to leave just yet—so I swiped his car."

"But you asked his permission first—you know you did," Mildred amended with a giggle.

Arthur regarded her gravely. Her face was flushed and her whole bearing was that of one in a twitter of excitement or elation.

Some girls and women change their manner as soon as an attractive man appears on the horizon.

Mildred was one of these. Arthur Bruce had not noticed this tendency until now—because he had always been the lucky man for whom her manner changed. Now that it was for another man, he resented it.

Indeed, Mildred Brent had never been so much thrilled by anyone's attentions as by those of this embryo soldier. As she met Bruce's clear gaze she flushed self-consciously.

"You remember, Arthur, that I mentioned Mr. Hilton as the man who is going to do something worth while?"

"Yes, I remember," Arthur answered. Then he held out his hand to Honora.

"Good afternoon," he said. "I must be going. Thank you for a very pleasant walk."

She did not remind him that he had started to come into the house, and did not detain him when, after saying good-by to Mildred and her companion, he went out of the gate.

"Can't I give you a lift if I am going your way?" Hilton called after him.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER XLIX.

(Copyright, 1918, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"FOLKS, you're all invited to dine wherever Evvy designates. I've just cleaned up almost one hundred on her humble about that Yankee Kid, Greyson," cried Jim in a voice of triumph.

He had recalled from the momentary collapse caused by his shock of happiness at the victory of the boy on which he had staked his last money for the week to come. And this was his reply to Evvy's little murmur: "You can just take me to dinner!"

Was this big party what Evvy had intended? I looked at her face—her lips smiled, her wide blue eyes told nothing.

There was all animation now. As everything about him had twitched when he was waiting for the verdict of success or loss, so now it seemed to fairly dance in every pulse and fibre.

Betty and Terry didn't appear to share in the general rejoicing, but rather to draw close in a common cause. Virginia was quite quiet and subdued. I wondered if she felt any of the terror that seemed to be actually tearing at my dry throat. But she gave me no glance of understanding, and Betty and Terry avoided my eyes.

I realized they all had some knowledge they wished to hide from me. It was almost too late for that now. But what lover their attitude toward the means by which he had made his little store of wealth, no one had the heart to deny Jim's right to be host to our party. In his joy there was a generous quality—and a rising from the humiliation of being a guest too often.

"Where do we go, Evvy?" asked Jim.

With a little air of importance, Evvy laid her hand on his arm:

"Shall we have a committee meeting about it, Jimmy boy?"

There was no refusing her wistful eyes, her quivering lips, the little note of pleading in her husky voice. Jim leaned down to her, and the rest of us shuffled about a bit impatiently, while the crowd began to surge by, and a mass of men out on the track seethed about the winning car, and the cameras focussed on the grinning "Yankee Kid."

At last Evvy jumped to her feet, eyes askance:

"We're going round to the Bay, good people," she exclaimed. You follow our car while we direct Captain Winston to an adorable little inn where we can have a table out on the balcony and a dinner."——

Evvy's voice trailed off into a whisper and she kissed the tips of her rosy fingers in ecstacy. She looked like a naughty fairy—and quite adorable. For a second her eyes fastened on Neal's, but the boy turned his glance away and leaned down to little Phoebe again.

Why Widows Charm

Because They Stand on a Pedestal of Life Knowledge

By Beatrice Fairfax

WHAT are the arts that widows employ to charm men?

How is it that a bachelor can resist the dazzling-like smiles and the dimpled innocence of a thousand ingenues, only to surrender unconditionally to the first light, beckoning glance from the widow who has chosen him?

It may be that there exists some sceptic, ignorant of the world of love and lovers, who will deny that widows have such opportunity of choice. But all the testimony of all the ages is to the contrary. And in this respect, at least, I think that men—and widows—haven't changed.

It's only a few days ago that a letter came to me from a young widow whose pen-name is "Perplexed." And her situation is truly one that warrants perplexity. After explaining that she is twenty years old and that her husband died two weeks after their marriage, she writes:

"I am now deeply in love with four men. One is two years my senior, the next is twenty years my senior, the third is one year my junior, and the last is fourteen years older than I. They all have asked me to marry them. The first is an accountant, the next is a banker, the third a soldier and the last a manufacturer.

"Will you please advise me what to do?"

Now there is no way of knowing what bewitchments this young woman exercises, in addition to being a widow. She may be more beautiful than Helen of Troy, her charms may be no less intoxicating than Cleopatra's. But I don't for a moment believe this. I think of her as a sweet, good-looking girl who has simply the enormous advantage of understanding men better than unmarried Eighteen who lives next door to her.

So that, because of this important difference between them, Unmarried Eighteen, who may have a much lovelier face and a more parading of intelligence, is likely ever to have to consider the proposals of more than one suitor at a time, while Widowed Twenty, with four patient, faithful lovers, standing in a row, so to speak, outside her door, has merely to decide on the one that suits her best.

Men's Own Testimony

It doesn't seem fair. If unmarried girls feel jealous of widows, I think they are to be forgiven. One isn't, or one shouldn't be, jealous of wit or beauty or goodness in other girls. Their advantage is natural and legitimate. When nature has been lavishly generous in a girl it is a matter of course that men should pay her tribute. But to be loved, and loved by multitudes, just because one has already been married, doesn't seem reasonable. There's something mysterious about it that one resents a little.

In order to get as nearly as possible to the heart of this mystery, I have consulted, not widows themselves, who mightn't know or mightn't tell me, but men, the bewitched and captive.

And so far as they can explain their own bewitchment, the truth seems to be that men first and last like company of widows, that is, of reasonably attractive ones, because they feel more comfortable and at ease with them than with unmarried girls.

In spite of all the warnings that have been shouted to the four corners of the earth about these seductive creatures, men actually fly to them with a sense of seeking safety, and readily drop all their defences on the way. This of course means very puzzling.

You see, normal men need the society of women. Usually they are not always willing to appear in the character of a suitor or possible husband, and they cannot all unmarried girls or looking at men in that light.

She's Safe

But the widow!—here, at least, they say to themselves, is a woman who isn't husband-hunting. She's had her husband. She's safe. So, being completely off their guard, they stumble into love a hundred times more quickly and more desperately than if a young, untried girl had inspired the emotion.

But not all men who court widows show this headlong blindness.

Some approach the siren deliberately, knowing quite well what they are about—not that they always affect to be ensnared.

"A widow is like a delicately scented, fragrant flower," one lover explained. "A mere nod hasn't that fragrance. Just as a young girl can't have any fascination."

But those who expect merely to sniff the metaphorical perfume and go on their way usually find that it goes to their heads and that they become infatuated lovers before they are even aware of having chosen their immortals. Or so men say of each other. I don't know that the men I've started with is thereby explained.

But what is the real truth about widows themselves? Have they greater or less capacity for love than other women? Who shall say?

I suspect that "Perplexed," at least, hasn't yet learned the true lesson of love, or she would know that her own heart must choose from among her four lovers, and that no one else can help her.

Ptomaine Poison

CANNED GOODS TO BLAME FOR MUCH

By Brice Belden, M. D.

THE increased use of canned and preserved meats of late years accounts in part for the frequency of ptomaine poisoning.

Uncleanliness, careless inspection and profiteering are large factors in the causation of ptomaine poisoning.

Ptomaines are chemical compounds resulting from the decomposition of albuminous material, such as meat, the decomposition being induced by certain germ processes known as saprophytes.

The Summer troubles of children are usually due to the formation in the milk used of a ptomaine called tyrotoxicon. In this case the saprophytes exert their effects upon the casein in the milk, which is an albuminous substance.

It is tyrotoxicon which accounts for cheese poisoning and ice cream poisoning, and also for poisoning by frozen custards and cream puffs. The refreezing of ice cream favors this form of ptomaine formation.

The symptoms of tyrotoxicon poisoning are nausea, vomiting, a sense of constriction in the throat, gripping intestinal pains, headache, chilliness, dizziness and sometimes purging. Exhaustion may follow, with coma, low temperature, collapse and death.

The Ideal Man

"My ideal husband," said the girl who had been reading novelettes, "must be a strong, silent man, full of grit, and able to bear the heat and burden of the day without flinching; one who will not hear a word said about me, and will never utter a word against me himself."

"What you want," answered her friend, "is a deaf and dumb coal-heaver."

No Taste for Water

Wife, severely: "Is this the fish you caught?" Husband: "Y-e-s, my dear." Wife, shrewdly: "Were you fishing in salt water or fresh?" Husband: "I—I don't know, m'dear. Didn't taste it!"

Vegetable Dinners

By Loretto C. Lynch

WHENEVER we suggest a vegetable dinner many folks immediately think of a number of individual dishes of vegetables with meat, or even the semblance of meat, left out. There are even some among us who are prejudiced against vegetable dinners as just impossible. But it is not until one tries a vegetable dinner prepared by an artist that one realizes the possibilities of vegetables.

We like meat for its flavor and appearance, and it is well to keep this in mind in camouflaging your vegetables. If the dish is well flavored and has the appearance of some of the meat dishes with which we are familiar we are not apt to be quite so prejudiced to begin with. And when, after eating, we feel just as nourished as if we had meat, perhaps prejudice is then entirely removed.

I do not believe that meat has a place in the diet. And I further believe that it should be served at least less a week, if not oftener, in the average American home, especially if there are growing children. But for variety, economy, as well as a conservation measure, every housewife, rich or poor, will do well to introduce a vegetable dinner into the diet at least once or twice a week.

You will like this. Try it.

VEGETABLE ROAST.

Two cups legume pulp, 1 cup dry bread crumbs, 1 level teaspoonful poultry seasoning, 1 small onion grated, ¼ cup melted butterine or clean dripping, 1 level teaspoonful salt, ¼ teaspoonful paprika, 1 tablespoonful parsley, 1 egg. Enough milk to make quite moist.

Beat egg slightly and add the milk to it. Combine with the other ingredients and mix well. Shape into a small loaf and bake in a pan lined with greased paper in a moderate oven half an hour, or until firm.

Peas, beans of any kind and lentils are called legumes. They should be soaked if necessary and cooked till soft, and then pressed through a sieve to obtain the pulp. When the roast is done remove paper and slice the loaf into half-inch slices. Serve with tomato sauce or, white sauce, or white sauce to which a few mushrooms or a little cheese has been added.

TheZeppelin'sPassenger

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

An Absorbing War-Time Novel Based on the Adventures of a German Spy in England

PHILIPPA sighed very softly.

"Do you mind ringing the bell?" she begged.

"The bell?" he repeated. "What for?"

Only Amusement

"Philippa, don't mock me," he pleaded. "If this is only amusement to you, tell me so and let me go away. It is the first time in my life that a woman has come between me and my work. I am no longer master of myself. I am obsessed with you. I want nothing else in life but your love."

There was an almost startling change in Philippa's face. The banter which had served her with so much effect, which she had relied upon as her defensive weapon, was suddenly useless. Lesingham had created an atmosphere around him, an atmosphere of sincerity.

"Are you in earnest?" she faltered.

"God knows I am!" he insisted.

"You—you care for me?"

"So much," he answered passionately, "that for your sake I would sacrifice my honor, my country, my life."

"But I've only known you for such a short time," Philippa protested, "and you're an enemy."

"I discard my birth. I renounce my adopted country," he declared fiercely. "You have swept my life clear of every scrap of ambition and patriotism. You have filled it with one thing only—a great, consuming love."

"Have you forgotten my husband?"

"Do you think that if he had been a differentsort of man I should have cared to speak? Ask yourself how you can continue to live with him? You can call him which you will. Both are equally disgraceful. Your heart knows the truth. He is either a coward or a philanderer."

Philippa's cheeks were suddenly white. Her eyes flashed. His words had stung her to the quick.

"A coward?" she repeated furiously. "You dare to call Henry that?"

Lesingham rose abruptly to his feet. He moved restlessly about the room. His fists were clenched, his tone thick with passion.

Voice Shaking

"I do!" he pronounced. "Philippa, look at this matter without prejudice. Do you believe that one life, a single man of my country, of your husband's age and rank, who would be content to let the sea be red for fish whilst his country's blood is being drained dry? Who would weigh a feather, he added, pointing scornfully to the scales, "whilst the funeral march of heroes is beating throughout the world? The thing is insensate, impossible!"

Philippa's head drooped. Her hands were nervously intertwined.

"Don't!" she pleaded. "I have suffered so much."

"Forgive me," he begged, with a sudden change of voice. "If I am mistaken in your husband — and there is always the chance—I am sorry. I will confess that I myself had a different opinion of him, but I can only judge from what I have seen and from that there is no one in the world who would not agree with me that your husband is unworthy of you."

"Oh, please stop!" Philippa cried. "Stop at once!"

Lesingham came back to his place by her side. His voice was still shaking, but it had grown very soft.

"Philippa, forgive me," he repeated. "If you only knew how it hurts to see you like this! Yet I must speak. There is just once in every man's lifetime when he must tell the truth. That time has come with me—I love you."

"So does my husband," she murmured.

"I will only remind you, then, that he shows it in strange fashion." Lesingham continued. "He sets your wishes at defiance. He who should be an example in a small place like this, is only an object of contempt in the neighborhood. Even I, who have only lived here for so short a time, have caught the burden of what people say."

Philippa wiped her eyes.

"Please, do you mind," she begged, "not saying anything more about Henry. You are only reminding me of things which I try all the time to forget."

"Believe me," Lesingham answered faithfully, "I am only too content to ignore him, to forget that he exists, to remember only that you are the woman who has changed my life."

Philippa looked at him in something like dismay, rather like a child who has started an engine which she has no idea how to stop.

"But you must not—you must not talk to me like this!"

His hand closed upon hers. It lay in his grasp, unyielding, cold, yet passive.

"Why not?" he whispered. "I have the one unalterable right, and I am willing to pay the great price."

Are you willing to be convinced that sore, stiff, aching joints or muscles can be relieved and rheumatism greatly benefited if not entirely conquered, for the insignificant sum of a dime?

Sounds too good to be true, doesn't it, thousands of people who have had rheumatism have found that it can be done, and laboring men and women are finding it out today. If you've tried lots of things, doctored and experimented without benefit, and found that they failed—why not try this simple, economical, yet scientific plan, and let results speak for themselves?

Just get a 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) and begin taking it tonight. It acts on the digestive and eliminative organs, improving digestion and assimilation and cleansing the body of accumulated waste, and purifies and poisons. With good digestion and assimilation, the body is nourished and vitality and natural power of resistance against disease are increased. With sick kidneys and bowels acting vigorously and regularly and the body free from irritating poisons, relief from rheumatism is assured. NR (Tablets) though mild and gentle in action, are thorough, positive and quickly. There is nothing harmful in it. Constipation is broken up, stomach, liver and bowels are toned and regulated and to crown it all, only results is sweet comfort, glorious, welcome peaceful health.

Try NR tonight—no risk in doing so for Nature's Remedy costs only 25c (enough to last twenty-five days), and comes with the distinct understanding that it must relieve and benefit you or money back.

Many times one million people in this country are using Nature's Remedy every year. What better proof of its great merit could be offered? It is sold, guaranteed and recommended by your druggist?

IRENE FRANKLIN COMING TO SHUBERT

Just Back from France, She Tells of Sawdust Circuit Behind Firing Line

Irene Franklin and Burton Green are just back from France, having "done" the sawdust circuit back of the American lines. They returned to New York recently and were immediately impressed into the service of "The Passing Show of 1918," with which Winter Garden attraction they will be seen at the Shubert beginning next Monday.

Miss Franklin was among the first American artists to volunteer for the "Over There Theatre League," and likewise she and Mr. Green were the first to actually appear before the American boys. Elsie Janis preceded her, but then Miss Janis was already in England when the league was formed. Consequently she had a start of some 3000 miles.

"New York, Boston and Chicago," says Miss Franklin, "are now 'small time' compared to the one-night stands in the Yankee camps. Playing to the soldiers is the real job, the biggest engagement I have ever played. This sort of entertainment, too, I want to tell you, is a godsend to the boys for when they are amused in this way it keeps them from the things that degrade and ruin them. The war is over but the soldiers still are in need of volunteer entertainers and I cannot appeal too strongly to my American fellow artists to sign up and hurry over and do as we did.

"I took my 'Redhead' costume with me, and although it was short, thin and low, I wore it whether it was raining, blowing or freezing. Everywhere we went we were recognized, not by one or two men, but hundreds of them. It made us feel at home, and believe me it made the boys feel that they were getting a message in person from the folks. Most of the time we appeared on motor trucks, Mr. Green playing a piano that suffered from shell shock. But in spite of every drawback, the soldiers never failed to give us the most rousing receptions we have ever received, and that is certainly a broad statement."

YOUNG PIANIST A BRILLIANT ARTIST

Rosita Renaud and Raoul Vidos, Violinist, Play in Symphony Hall

By FRED J. McISAAC.

The Symphony Hall concert yesterday afternoon introduced two young artists to Boston audiences. Rosita Renaud, a pianist from Chili, and Raoul Vidas, a French violinist. The accompanist was Walter Golde.

Senorita Renaud is a simple and wholesome appearing young woman who plays intelligently, sympathetically and brilliantly. Her versatility was well demonstrated by a Chopin waltz, nocturne and scherzo, and several picturesque bits by Debussy, while her physical, as well as mental, qualities were called upon by two stirking numbers from Liszt.

Vidas is an attractive looking boy, small like so many violinists and a vivid figure upon the platform. His powers of technique were spoiled for me by a thin and disagreeable quality of tone.

Free Organ Recital

John Hermann Loud will play tonight at the fifteenth organ recital of the New England Chapter of the American Guild of Organists at the Park Street Church. The recital is free.

COAST TRIP FOR GIANTS AND SOX

By SAM CRANE.

New York, Nov. 25.—Rumors from Washington indicate that the government is desirous of having baseball start off next Spring under playing conditions that existed previous to the famous "work or fight" order.

With the closing of the war that order went out of existence automatically, but doubtless the Secretary of War will soon make an official announcement that it is no longer in force.

The club owners of the National and American Leagues, anticipating such action, have decided to begin active preparation to make up their dates for next season and are in hopes that the star players who are still in service over in Europe will be mustered out in time to allow them to begin the championship season in 1919 with their respective clubs.

TRIAL TRIPS SOUTH.

Manager McGraw had intended to spend part of the coming Winter in Cuba, but owing to the importance of the baseball situation, and the necessity of rounding up his Giants, he will remain in town and devote his entire time to club affairs.

It is very probable that the Giants will make their customary trip next Spring to Texas for their annual preliminary practice. Secretary John B. Foster is already making plans for an exhibition series of games and is negotiating for dates with Texas clubs.

Last Spring the Clevelands and Giants were the contending clubs on a successful barnstorming trip and they may combine for another next Spring, although that has not yet been decided upon. Last season's series of games between them resulted in a tie and that would make them logical contestants for part of the money.

It is quite possible that the Boston Red Sox, champions of the world, may make the California trip with the Giants. It is said that negotiations are under way now between President Hempstead, Manager McGraw and Harry Frazee, owner of the Red Sox, for such a series.

BENNY KAUFF COMES BACK.

Word has been received from several of the Giants that they are anxious for next season to start, as they will join their old club whenever ordered to report.

Corporal Benny Kauff, who is still located at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe (O.), writes that he expects to be mustered out of the service in about two weeks, and if not sooner, John B. will be back in New York within thirty days, and will report to Manager Winter, ready to get into his old baseball uniform again at the drop of the hat.

Corporal Kauff will be welcomed back into the Giants' fold with open arms.

10 Years Ago In Sport World

JOHN L. TAYLOR, president of the Red Sox, some year being challenged to a duel. The president of the Mobile (Southern Association) club, was introduced to John L. "Ever been in our country?" answered the Southerner. Taylor answered "No, thank God." Friends interfered

HARRY LEWIS and Unk Russell will once more in a six-round bout at Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 16. (They evidently had a league, too.)

SAILOR BURKE and Joe Thomas and it hot and heavy at the Armory A. A., Burke getting the decision at the end of the fifth roundin The fair kept pounding away at Joe's stomach, and the latter was in bad shape for the finish. Burke had put up a game battle, however, and finished strong without. The Sailor was full of hard rans. Billy Rolfe met a tough one in Tom Sawyer and had to work all the way to get either in the verdict in the eight-round semi-final. Young Clark in good Boston won over Young Clark in eight rounds at Somerville Armory between Burke and Thomas? Gee, but it was a singfest!)

FRANK BOWERMAN is a candidate to succeed Joe Kelley as manager of the Braves. However, Kelley says he has a two-year contract and will not resign. (There was some rumpus over the contract. It is the straightforward out, though. How do they settle it?)

* * *

FRED BRADLEY, who was injured in a ship that struck a mine off Philadelphia, is improving. Fred was removed to a hospital immediately after the explosion.

* * *

TED COY has been elected captain of the Yale football eleven for next year. (Good judgment, say we.)

* * *

YOUNG DONOHUE of Hockers and Harry Greenfield of Boston Athletic had the feature bout at the Holloway A. C. of Manchester, N. H., Thanksgiving Day. (Mix up on Phils dates somewhere.)

* * *

DAVE DESHLER is to meet Young Kirby at Jim Coffey's club in Lawrence Thanksgiving Day. (Ah, we know now. Powers and Deshler took those bouts so they could eat their turkey at home. Their New Orleans dates have been knocked back a bit.)

MORGAN FOILED IN EFFORT TO PAN DEMPSEY

By JACK VEIOCK.

A number of New York pencil pushers, and Jack Dempsey on the part ever since he failed to take on Joe Jeanette as a substitute for Joe Bonds in the recent War Work Fund show at Madison Square Garden, New York.

One writer is convinced that there is no place in boxing for Jack because he has drawn the color line.

In the same breath this same scribe admits that Dempsey has nothing to fear from a boxer like Jeannette, who was the kind they tried to foist on to Dempsey in place of Bonds, after they had persuaded Joe to refuse to go on with his part of the show.

As a matter of fact, Dempsey was so hot around the collar when he tumbled to what Dan McKetrick, manager Jeannette; Dan Morgan, manager of Hat Leverich posse, and recently knocked out in Philly, and other managers were trying to frame on him that he offered to meet any man in the house.

C. A. C. HAS STAR CARD OF BOUTS FOR HOLIDAY

The Commercial A. C. puts on its show this week Thanksgiving afternoon; starting time 2:30 o'clock. Manager-Matchmaker Al Kirby has booked three corkers for the six-round curtain-raiser. Bobby Josephs and Al Gerard, classy lightweight youths; Shaver O'Brien and Leo Downey, a pair who generally please, and Mike Paulson and Young Goula, robust battlers, will do the honors in the ten-round go. Willie Green and Bert Jones are carded to start the ball a-rolling.

When Dave Powers, the Malden blood, and Billy Carney of New Bedford come together Thanksgiving Day afternoon at the Marlboro Driving Club, there will be no lack of interest in a slashing bout. Both boys have have been in strict training for the bout, as forfeits of $100 have been posted by their respective managers that they will weigh in at 140 pounds at 4 o'clock. In addition to the Powers-Carney bout, Matchmaker Leonard has a strong preliminary card arranged.

John A. Foster, president of the new Central A. C., the latest addition to the fistic field in Greater Boston, has announced that the quarters of the new association will be at the Park Riding Academy, in the Fenway.

President Foster states that the club will hold its first meeting on December 9 and Joe Cummings of the Boston Athletic Association will be the third man in the ring.

FORT SLOCUM BATTLES PELHAM BAY ON HOLIDAY

New York, Nov. 25.—The Fort Slocum football machine, one of the best of the service brigades, plays the Pelham Bay Park team at Travers Island Thanksgiving day. The soldiers are coached by a Michigan star quarterback of a few years ago, Captain Carl Stoltz. Other college men on the eleven are Hasbrouck, Rutgers; Fisher, Muhlenburg; Gibson, Villa Nova, and Donohan, Union.

Kimball, Charles and Regan, the latter former Cincinnati Reds pitcher, are in the backfield and so far this year opposing teams have failed to stop them.

FULLERTON'S COLUMN

Peace means nothing to baseball. Before the notice of the big celebration died down a trifle the baseball morals, who evidently are weary of being out of the limelight, revived their best indoor sport, which is Winter scandal, and started what promises to be a war to the finish.

The Bolsheviki, which are the Minor Leagues, have declared independence, and the Kaiserbund of Militarists, led by Ban Johnson and Garry Herrmann, are determined to continue and perpetuate their rule over baseball.

Both sides declare themselves determined to reform the game, and the idea of the Bolshevik leaders is to get rid of Johnson and Herrmann and secure independence, while the idea of the Johnson-Herrmann Divine Right bunch of major leaguers is to establish a more drastic rule, with fewer privileges for the little fellow and more power for the major leaguers.

Judging from the spirit of independence and democracy, which is running over the world, the minor leaguers will win.

That baseball must be reformed; that it must find a new system of handling the business and controlling the sales and the transfers of players from club to club and from league to league, both the managers of the majors and those of the minors agree.

The National Commission and some of the big league owners, especially Connie Mack, desire laws that will forbid the selling of players from one major league club to another, or from the minors to the majors.

BIG BAN VERY ANGRY.

They want the drafting system extended and the right to draft such players as they need from the minor leagues, with a greater period of time in which they may take players at a stated price from the minors.

The minor leagues met at Peoria last week and calmly voted to do away with the drafting system entirely, to refuse to have their players taken from them save by direct sale. Further, they voted to rebel against the "optional agreement" law by which major leagues are entitled to send players back to the minors for seasoning and recall them almost at will.

When notified of the act of the minors President Johnson raged and declared the National Association of Minor Leagues is a wretched organization, which cannot control itself, and that it can go to where so many have consigned the Kaiser. Ha, Johnson, and the National Commission will do that little thing.

So the merry war is on—and the sad part of it is that neither Johnson nor Herrmann, who have resumed their rule voluntarily, has the least assurance that he will be an official after the meetings of the National and American Leagues.

The minor leagues are planning a reorganization of various circuits, to make them more compact and logical geographically, a general reduction of expenses, and they are strong for giving employment to as many of the returning ball player soldiers as they can get.

MAJORS STILL IN AIR.

There are signs now to open the season next Spring perhaps a little later than usual, but voted to defer any action until after the war has been finally settled.

The major leagues are not certain that they will make an effort to resume baseball next Spring or not. Some favor starting arrangements immediately, while others are urging a waiting policy.

The reconstruction period in baseball promises to be as lively as the reconstruction in Europe with as many rebellions.

The minors having revolted against the rather selfish rule of the majors, which always has been one-sided, the next revolt probably will be that of the players, for they will not stand for the drastic cuts in salary which both major and minor leagues propose.

Either the majors can reopen or not in a big problem in itself.

SOCCER LEAGUE IS TO PUT BAN ON GERMANS

Secretary E. Spencer of the Dominion Football Association will send to the council for approval the following motion, and if satisfactory to Canadian soccer men, it will be forwarded to Amsterdam, the headquarters of La Federation Internationale de Football Association, and acted upon by several countries affiliated with the F. I. F. A.:

"Proposed by Hugh Craig Campbell, president Dominion of Canada Football Association, that the membership of the German Association, governing soccer football in Prussia and confederated states, with the Federation Internationale de Football Association, be suspended for a period of five years, to date from January 1—following cessation of hostilities."

In a statement, President Campbell said:

"This motion, if carried by the supreme governing body of football, means that Germany will be outside the pale, as far as soccer is concerned, for five years after the war is over. I consider this time sufficiently ample for such a sport."

Camp Dix Eleven Wins

Brooklyn, Nov. 25.—The Camp Dix football eleven defeated the Minnola, 7 to 0, here today.

QUINCY POLOISTS HAVE BIG CARD IN FARRELL

GAMES FOR TONIGHT.

Quincy vs. Boston, at Arena. Cambridge at Providence.

The Quincy roller polo team makes its first appearance in Arena tonight. The five bouts of the "Ping" Bodle of the game is "Wild Charley" Farrell, its pugnacious centre.

Jesse Duckett has switched from magnate to referee. He sold his Cambridge team to Lawrence sporting men, and the new owners intend to land Bill Duggan, the star rusher, if possible. Duggan is still in the army, but expects to be discharged shortly. The Taunton speed boys are recognized as one of the stars of the game.

Fred Jean is once more under the management of Bill Parsons. He formerly piloted pennant-winners at New Britain and Lowell for the Boston magnate.

The revised schedule for Thanksgiving follows:

Afternoon—Boston at Quincy, Worcester at Providence, Lawrence at Lowell, Lynn-Worcester at Lynn, Lawrence at Lowell, Quincy at Providence.

ANNAPOLIS SUB HAS FOOTBALL SET IN AIR

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25.—The action of Submarine Chaser Saunders of the Navy eleven, in running out from the sidelines and tackling Elison, Great Lakes right halfback, in his run down the field in the final period of Saturday's football game, has provided a subject for wide discussion.

While the matter was ended by the Navy authorities conceding the touchdown, rule experts are deeply interested in the discovery that there is no way in which a touchdown could be awarded as a penalty under the rules.

Some of the Navy supporters are inclined to believe that Ingram had carried the ball across the goal line and properly downed it before Ellison got it, but there is no thought of any protest. The majority believe he lost it.

Saunders is not likely to take any further part in athletic affairs at the Academy, it is explained that he acted entirely on impulse when he tackled Elison, and, of course, is sorry.

The Arlington girls won from Winthrop at Arlington last week, 6-0, and another victory for them will eliminate the beach town young ladies as possible contenders for the State title.

HERE'S STAR ATHLETES WHO LOST THEIR LIVES IN WAR

FAMOUS American athletes, whose careers ended on the battlefields of Europe or in different branches of the government's service, gaining gold stars on the sport service flag, include:

Harvard Eddie" Grant, former National League third baseman; Sergeant, Yale oarsman; "Alex" Wilson, Yale, football player; Johnny Poe, Princeton football player; Mills and Coolidge, Harvard football players; Reid, Princeton baseball player; Savage and Pauli, Princeton oarsmen; Ross and Glass, University of Pennsylvania oarsmen; Shull and Goddard, Chicago football players; Curry, Vanderbilt, football star; Johnny Overton, Yale distance runner; Thomas, Princeton athlete.

CRIMSON HITS IT UP FOR GAME WITH BROWN

Harvard's football preparation for the Brown game next Saturday, which winds up the abbreviated Crimson schedule, was to start in the Stadium this forenoon.

Coach Donovan's main problems this week are to build up an adequate defence against the forward pass, and add to his slim collection of offensive formations.

The Crimson, if Saturday's play against Boston College can be taken as a criterion, has less than ten formations for use, and no really effective forward pass play. The Maroon and Old Gold tried fourteen forward passes. Four fell into Harvard arms, five were successful, and a like number were uncompleted.

Coach Donovan was greatly pleased with the effective work of Frank Russo at centre. The former High School of Commerce athlete isn't a showy player, but gets results, especially on the defence. Coleman and Brown, the guards, played their positions well. The former's work was one of the big features of the rushline.

GOOD PAIR OF TACKLERS.

Macomber, Newton High centre of two years ago, made good at right tackle, and managed to smear the Boston College rushes quite often. Mc-Mahonn, the other tackle, filled his position high—not considered good form in the best of football circles—but he is aggressive and a hard man to put out of action.

Captain Dalzell and George Dennis proved acceptable on the wings, but both men must be on their mettle for the Brown game. The Brunonians, now that they have so handily disposed of Dartmouth, are opponents that the Crimson need worry about.

Arthur Casassa handled Harvard well with the small kit of plays he had to select from, and did some rare running himself. One of his skip continued for fifty yards before a Boston College tackler called a halt.

Bobby Hoffman did some nice work at the pivot, but he and several good rushes before being hurt. Bob Porter, his successor, also turned in several tidy performances.

GOOD PUNTER NEEDED.

Harvard needs a good punter, and unless Hunneman or Coburn get started on their kicking stride soon, Coach Donovan will have to call Dennis back from the line when a punter is called for. Dennis hasn't been used as a kicker in a game yet, but he has been doing good work in practice.

Saturday's contest demonstrated that the Crimson is fairly well fixed for substitutes. Levine is a fine end and compares favorably with either Dennis or Daley. Tom Murphy is a slight, though a good, substitute for Paul Dashiell, the aggressive tackle.

After next Saturday's game the Harvard players are going to be in the light of the fine showing made by Dutch Princeton team, and with the Tigers would be welcomed by the players. The authorities are in favor of arranging such a battle, however.

REAGAN AND SLINEY DO FINE WORK ON GRIDIRON

Battery Wharf's guns proved entirely too heavy for Camp Edgar in the second game of the series on Braves Field, and, after a battle royal, landed right side up, 6-0. It was a corking good game all the way. Reagan came in for the touchdown for the winners and Dutton kicked goal, while a safety came in the fourth period for the only two points. Delroy tallied for Camp Edgar.

Reagan, Battery Wharf's quarterback, put up a slashing good game, while Sliney, at left half, was the star for Camp Edgar. The former Somerville High boy was at his best and his touchdown was a corker. Sliney's running good game all the way. Dutton came in for the touchdown for the winners and Dutton kicked goal, while a safety came in the fourth period for the only two points. Delroy tallied for Camp Edgar.

NAVY-PITT GAME NOT FOR NEW YORK

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 25.—Officials at the naval academy today said it was unlikely that the middies' football team would accept the invitation of Pittsburg University to a game in New York December 7. The middies may be allowed to play Warner's champions here, however, it was said.

MITCHELL MILITARY IN FINAL CONTEST TODAY

Billerica, Nov. 25.—The Mitchell Military Boys' School eleven was to wind up its season on the local gridiron this afternoon, Wilmington High school furnishing the opposition. The Mitchell team's season was a brief one, owing to the influenza epidemic. Still, they can credit coming to Captain Josselyn and his players for their good work.

MUNROE SCHOOL TEAM LANDS FOOTBALL FLAG

The Munroe School eleven is assured of the championship of the Lexington Grammar School Football League race, regardless of the outcome of its battle with the Adams School team at Lexington Athletic Field this afternoon. Second place goes to Hancock School, with Adams School finishing last in the race.

NEW YORK—Scores in tournament at Engineers' Country Club for benefit of United War Work Campaign: Herbert Strang, 79, Tom Kerrigan, 84; Frank Hoyt, 84; Findlay S. Douglas, 84.

NEW YORK—Richard T. Stone, Nye Neck A. C., starting from scratch in the eight-mile handicap, won by a new A. A. U. record when he covered seven miles 1,437 yards 1 inches in one hour. His time for the eight miles was 1:01:06. This displaces his old record of 1:02:08½.

OFFER TO TAFT IS BASEBALL BOMBSHELL

Taft Would Only Be Arbitrator

Former President William H. Taft, in reply to an inquiry regarding the proposition to act as arbitrator in big league baseball disputes, sent the following telegram from Waterbury, Ct.:

"Mr. Hempstead and Mr. Frazee called on me Saturday to ask me if I would consider acting as arbiter between the National and American Leagues, In matters involving the legal construction of contracts between the leagues and their application to transactions between them as they might arise.

"I said to them that I did not practice law as an advocate in the courts, but that I had acted as arbitrator in several cases.

"I could not act except as a judge of law and fact, or any way take part in management of their associations. It must be work of a strictly legal, professional character."

New York, Nov. 25.—William Howard Taft has been asked to supply baseball with new prestige.

The ex-president is considering a proposal to serve as a one-man supreme court for the national pastime, and fandom is today awaiting his decision with open-mouthed interested. The action of Presidents B. H. Frazee of the Red Sox and H. N. Hempstead of the Giants in asking Mr. Taft to assume the duties heretofore performed by the National Commission created a surprise because of its suddenness.

Yet fandom has been telling itself all along that the game needed a thorough shaking up and it is evident now that the magnates have decided to make sweeping changes.

Whether or not Messrs Frazee and Hempstead acted with the backing of a majority of the clubs in both leagues is an open question.

It is believed, however, that they have assurance of practically united support. It is also considered certain here that should Mr. Taft consent to become connected with the game he would be highly acceptable to all of the club owners.

GOSSIP OF GLOVELAND

BECAUSE OF an injury to his right hand, suffered in his victorious bout with Kid Norfolk at the Arena last Tuesday night, Chief Turner, the Indian fighter, has been obliged to cancel all his engagements for next month.

OVER HERE they call Joe Jeannette an old man because he is thirty-seven years of age, but over in England Tiger Flowers, recently treated his title as holder of the Lonsdale belt as featherweight champion of England, and he has seen just the same number of Summers and Winters. He beat Joe Conn, a much younger boxer, in seventeen rounds.

DEVENS BOXERS TO SHOW FOR XMAS FUND

Soldier boxers at Camp Devens want to do their bit for the Boston AMERICAN'S Fund. They will be given an opportunity in a great boxing carnival to be staged in the North Street Rink, Salem, Saturday evening. The event promises to be the biggest indoor sports competition Salem has ever known.

This season Camp Devens has the greatest service boxing team in the East. A week after the clash at Salem the camp performers go to Chicago to compete with the Great Lakes Naval Training station team for the national championship.

Andy Bobbies is a veteran ring performer, best known to Western fans. He was good enough to slip one over on Chick Hayes of the Radio School a week ago, however, and will give an excellent account of himself at Salem.

Tommy Thompson is the sensation of the season at Devens. At 125 pounds he has yet to be defeated. The same holds good at 145 pounds for Joe Rocco, Sergeant George Jung and A. P. Sullivan, former Maine lightweight champion. Sergeant Jung is back from a year in the trenches. While in foreign service he won the 145-pound championship of the American forces. Other stars include Bill Casey of South Boston, Billy Fitzpatrick and Johnny McMenimen.

A match attractive program could hardly be arranged than this one. At least six bouts will be staged. Every one should be a hummer from going to gong. In the wrestling bouts one of the performers is Young Chasse of Fall River. Chasse holds the Fox featherweight belt.

BOSTON BOWLERS BUMP ALLEYS IN FIFTH ROUND

The Amateur Boston Pin League indulges in its fifth round of match play tonight. The schedule:

Arlington Boat Club at home to City Club; Cosmos at Dorchester; Dorchester at Winthrop Yacht Club; home to Winter Club; Lynn Yacht Club at home to Oxford Club.

Winner is out in front with a mark of 1274, Colonial and Winthrop are tied for place honors, with 10-6. Cottage Park is final at 1,140 pins is high. This team ranks fourth in the standing.

OWNERS IN COMBINE TO TO GET RID OF BIG BAN

Philadelphia, Nov. 25.—Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, has been asked to join a combination of magnates of his circuit with the intention of forcing Ban Johnson from the presidency of the American League.

A session of two major leagues magnates was held in this city last Friday night, when the local magnate was asked to join the conference against the present head of the league

HAWAIIAN MERMAN IS HEADED FOR CALIFORNIA

Although the recent visit of Harold Farger of Honolulu to Philadelphia appeared to confirm the report of his prospective affiliation with the Meadow Brook Club, there is reason to believe he will soon set out for California. He completed for a while spending the Winter in the East, but his friends now say he has decided to remain his studies without delay at St. Mary's College in Oakland.

BURNS LETS JOHANSEN NAME WEIGHT FIGURE

Sycione Burns has conceded the beef question to Elmer Johansen, the big Norwegian, so that they will wrestle at catchweights in the big number of the Thanksgiving night carnival at the Grand Opera House. The semi-final clash will be twixt John Kilonis and Al Ventress.

TRY PRIVATE AT DEVENS ON SPY CHARGE

Stringfellow, Before Courtmartial, Is Accused of Tapping Telephone Wire

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, Nov. 25.—Evidence was taken today at the trial of Private Frensley H. Stringfellow of D Company, 212th Field Signal Battalion, who is charged with violation of the espionage act. He pleaded not guilty.

The proceedings are before a courtmartial board consisting of Brigadier-general John E. Woodward, commander of the 24th Infantry Brigade, president; Colonel Almon L. Parmenter, commander of the 13th Infantry; Colonel James B. Kemper, commander of the 73d Infantry; Colonel Oliver H. Dockery, jr.; Colonel John D. Long, commander of the Headquarters Trains and Military Police; Lieutenant-Colonel Robert H. Wolfe, division quartermaster; Lieutenant-Colonel Charles S. Frank, 26th Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Samuel G. Talbot, 3d Infantry; Lieutenant-Colonel Isadore M. Unger, commander of the 12th Sanitary Train, and Major George H. Richards, 212th Engineers.

The specific charges against Stringfellow are that he tapped telegraph wires at the camp, gave information concerning them, made a diagram of the telegraph office, and made disparaging remarks about the United States.

He is defended by Lieutenant Joseph R. Wren of the 212th Field Signal Battalion, Captain Francis Stanley Dunn and Judge Advocate.

Witnesses against Stringfellow Captain W. F. Wilkie, A Company, Military Police, Clarence B. McNeil, headquarters troops; M. F. Jacobson, No. 46 Milk street, Boston; Arnold S. Meyer of the Western Union; First Lieutenant Lindsey, 212th Field Signal Battalion; R. E. Pond of the Department of Justice; Thomas F. Devine, Military Police, and Corporal Edward Goldberg, 16th Company, Depot Brigade.

The findings of the board will be submitted to the division revie authorities.

Keep Our Ships, Paid For by the People, Under Public Ownership

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

A gentleman named Bowles—Rear Admiral Bowles, to give him his full title—did something the other day at the Hog Island shipyards which we would like to commend to the attention not only of people engaged in the fabrication of ships, but to that of the American people, who, we hope, by now have discovered that a great merchant marine is a necessity to this nation.

Peace, which brought glee and exultation to most of us, brought to Admiral Bowles an apprehension lest the men working on the ships at the yard should abandon their work. Accordingly he posted this notice at the most conspicuous point on Hog Island:

"TO THE MEN AT HOG ISLAND: DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIPS. UNCLE SAM NEEDS THEM IN PEACE OR WAR. STICK TO YOUR JOB AND I'LL STICK TO MINE."

That is the spirit which should animate all our people when the matter of pressing the construction of our merchant shipping is under consideration. It was the spirit expressed by that master shipbuilder, Charles M. Schwab, when he declared the other night that thirteen million tons of shipping, contracted for by the government through the Emergency Fleet Corporation, would be completed, war or no war, and set afloat at the earliest possible moment.

If this spirit is maintained both in shipbuilding circles and the government offices having to do with the development of the merchant marine it will be one of our most valuable by-products of the war.

For no one who will stop to give the matter serious consideration for a moment can fail to see that the passing of the emergency which necessitated the creation of a tremendous fleet to carry men and munitions to Europe has not ended the necessity for such a fleet.

While our shipbuilders are thus endeavoring to stimulate construction at home, Edward N. Hurley, head of the United States Shipping Board, has gone to Europe to seek precise information as to our probable shipping needs and the methods of meeting them when war demands are over.

Mr. Hurley states the situation which must be met thus clearly and succinctly:

"The continued need for building American-owned tonnage is obvious. Not only must we continue to supply our armies overseas, and to prepare to bring them home at the earliest moment compatible with safety, but Europe must be fed and supplied with the necessary materials to permit the reconstruction of devastated areas, in order that both our friends and our enemies may become self-supporting and the burden of feeding the world taken from our shoulders.

"THERE ARE NOT ENOUGH SHIPS IN THE WORLD TO CARRY ON THIS WORK AND TO PROVIDE IMMEDIATELY FOR ORDINARY COMMERCE. For that reason only a limited portion of the shipping which can be constructed by us in 1919 will be available for use in the ordinary commercial channels."

It is Mr. Hurley's business to find ships for the government. We have no doubt that he will discharge this duty efficiently.

But it will be the duty of the government to see that these ships are controlled and managed for the good of the people. Perhaps it may be necessary for the people to be vigilant lest this duty be not properly observed.

It is to be kept in mind that these ships have been built at the cost of and under the direction of the United States Government and are now subject to control by an official Shipping Board.

It is vital to the future of our merchant marine that there should be no abandonment of this government ownership, control, and, if need be, of operation of the ships. Mark well that the trade war which shall follow this war of high explosives is going to be as bitterly fought as was the purely military war. The United States has so long been out of the field of the international carrying trade that the inclination on the part of the nations that have long controlled that field will be to continue to bar us from it.

Huge sums of money will be available to accomplish this purpose, and diplomacy, both official and commercial, will be taxed to its fullest resources to attain this end. If the ships now owned by our government or building for it shall be permitted to pass into private hands there is danger that appetite for immediate profits may lead their owners to sell them to foreign countries. THE EFFECT OF THIS WOULD BE TO DEPRIVE US MORE OR LESS SPEEDILY OF THE FLEET WHICH WE HAVE AT SUCH GREAT COST OF TIME AND MONEY AND EFFORT BUILT UP.

The foreign trade of the United States, its foreign carrying trade, can be prosecuted only with the aid, the protection and under the constant supervision of the government. That is true not only of this nation alone, but of all nations. The rapid conquest of foreign markets by Germany was accomplished by government aid and by government subsidies. Great Britain built up her monopoly of the ocean carrying trade by methods of subsidy. It was because of this unfair competition by foreign governments that our shipowners were forced off the seas and our merchant fleet was reduced to pitiful proportions.

Our citizens who may now seek to rebuild our foreign trade, and to re-create our merchant marine, are going to be forced to encounter the competition of rivals who are heavily subsidized by their own governments.

The present situation, with the ownership by the nation of an immense fleet of cargo carrying vessels, affords an opportunity to meet this economic necessity without offending those who shy at the word subsidy. THE SHIPS BELONG TO ALL OF US. And all the people of the Union wish to think of them as plying the Seven Seas and carrying our products to foreign ports under the United States flag.

WHAT IS WANTED IS AN AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE AFLOAT, OCCUPIED CONSTANTLY WITH THE EXTENSION OF AMERICAN FOREIGN TRADE, MANNED BY AMERICAN SAILORS AND SAILING UNDER THE AMERICAN FLAG.

All this can be accomplished with suitable encouragement from the National Administration. And the first step toward its accomplishment is to give the assurance that the ships which have been built with the people's money shall not be alienated, but shall be operated for the extension of American trade under the control and under the continued ownership of the United States Government.

This end can easily be attained by a suitable system of leases, and it is an end toward the attainment of which the administration should take immediate steps.

WINIFRED BLACK'S ARTICLE

She Writes How Telephone Tim Was Disappointed Because She Did Not Hire the 'Hello' Girl

By Winifred Black

TELEPHONE TIM is disappointed in me, a good deal disappointed, and he's written to tell me about it.

I'm sorry—for I like Telephone Tim.

There's something about him that got into the letter, even when he wrote and told me he was disappointed—something breezy and wholesome and honest and courageous.

He's disappointed because I said I wouldn't engage a young woman for my secretary because when she came to ask for the position she opened the door of my little office, looked in, and said "Hello," and then sat down and gave me what I really haven't much doubt she would call in her own language "the once over," to see if I would do.

Telephone Tim thinks that any one who can hear the music in the singing of the telephone wires out in the country on a sunny day when all the bees are humming and all the birds are singing, ought to be too broad-minded to care whether one said, "Good morning" or "Hello"—that's what has disappointed him.

Come now, Timothy, let us sit down and reason together.

You used to be a line repairer, you say, and you heard the telephone wires sing many and many a time, and you can hear them now whenever you think of it—just as plain.

Tact and More Tact

I haven't a doubt that you can, and I'll warrant, too, that you can shut your eyes and see dandelions, yellow in the grass, and smell the first violets that grow along in the damp hollows not too far from the track, and hark—was that a meadow lark? How full of Spring his song is, and of youth and hope, and good and wholesome cheer.

Now, Timothy, if you had wanted in those bygone years to engage a man to go and help you mend wires, what kind of a man would you choose?

A city-bred fellow who would die of homesickness the minute he got beyond the sound of the street cars and the honk of the automobile horns?

An old man whose climbing days were over?

A surly fellow, who would dispute your orders and grumble at your plans?

An absent-minded, easy-going chap, who would tie the wrong wire to the wrong wire while he hummed the latest one-step and didn't care the drop of his hat how frightfully he mixed up the service?

Or would you have chosen a man who liked the country, fearless, nimble, quick-witted, used to wires and the handling of them, and a cheerful, companionable disposition?

Answer me, Timothy, upon your honor—you know what you would have done.

Well, then, when you engage a secretary you engage some one to smooth the rough corners of business, professional, and sometimes even social life.

The modern professional man couldn't get through his day to save his life without the help of just such a girl as that.

The modern business establishment couldn't go on running for a week as it runs today, smoothly and without friction, if there were not at least half a dozen such girls somewhere around the place.

All Busy

And every one of them busy explaining and apologizing, and smoothing down and bracing up, and encouraging and cheering, and remembering the right thing and forgetting the wrong ones every hour of the day—either in the big front office with the mahogany desks and the Persian rugs, and the painting of the founder of the business in a gold frame—or out in the little cubby-hole where the office boy sits and marks the baseball reports.

And that sort of girl or that sort of woman doesn't say "Hello" when she speaks to a stranger, especially to a stranger older than herself who intends to offer her a good position—and who wants to see whether she has the courtesy and the tact and the social training to be a competent secretary—or not.

No, there's nothing wrong with the word "Hello"—not a thing wrong with it. But there is something wrong with the person who doesn't know when and how and where and to whom to use it.

Think it over, Timothy, and see if you don't agree with me.

I CAN see the roof
FROM MY window.
AND EVERY day
AT A given hour,
THROUGH THE haze.
AND THROUGH the rain
OR IN the sun,
COME PIGEONS.
FROM EVERYWHERE.
AND THEY circle around.
AND REACH the roof.
IN ANOTHER building,
A WINDOW opens,
AND A woman comes.
WITH A tin dish.
AND WHAT there is in it,
SHE THROWS down.
TO THE roof below.
AND WITH much cooing,
AND A lot of billing,
WHATEVER THAT is,
THE PIGEONS eat.
AND WHEN they're through,
THEY STRETCH their wings.
AND STRAIGHTEN their feathers.
AND FIX themselves up.
AND PARADE around.
AND THEN one of them says,
IN PIGEON language,
"LET'S GO."
AND THEY fly away.
AND THE next day,
THEY COME back again.
AT THE same hour.
AND THEY'VE been doing that,
FOR MONTHS and months.
AND THEY'RE over there now,
JUST WANDERING around.
AND WAITING,
AND UP above,
WHERE THE woman comes.
THE SHADES are drawn.
AND IT'S more than an hour,
PAST THE feeding time.
AND ONE big pigeon,
THAT ALWAYS comes.
HAS JUST flown up
PAST THE shaded window,
AND COME down again.
AND IF he said anything,
TO THE other pigeons.
IT HASN'T made any difference,
BECAUSE THEY'RE still there.
AND IT'S growing dark.
AND I'M too far away.
TO THROW anything to them.
AND IN a little while,
THEY'LL HAVE to go.
TO WHEREVER they sleep.
AND THEY'RE not fixing their feathers,
OR ANYTHING.
THEY'RE JUST wandering around.
AND THEY'RE going now.
WITH THE big one in the lead.
AND THEY'LL have to go to bed.
WITHOUT ANY supper.
AND I'M going to ask the Janitor.
ABOUT THE woman.
BECAUSE IF she's moved.
THE PIGEONS ought to know.
AND IF she hasn't moved.
IF SHE'LL send me her keys.
I'LL GET a dish of stuff.
AND GO up to her flat.
AND THROW it down tomorrow.
IF THE pigeons come back.

I THANK you.

TROUBLES OF POLAND AT THE PEACE CONGRESS

By Dr. L. Bogusz Wlazlo

President of the Polish Citizens' Committee of Boston

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

In your editorial of November 18, among the difficulties which are confronting the Peace Congress, you enumerated also the establishment of Poland, and you impress on your readers that there are Polish territories bitterly disputed, not only by the Ukrainians and Lithuanians, but also that there is a Poland proper and not proper, namely Galicia, and that even the Poles of the latter object to being united with Poland proper.

As a matter of fact, I wish to point out that Galicia is already united with what was called in said editorial as Poland proper, and that at least this difficulty will not confront the Peace Congress because it is already settled by the people concerned.

According to reliable information from Poland, the Polish deputies of Galicia at the very outbreak of revolution in Austria, renounced all allegiance to Austria, left Vienna, and came directly to Warsaw; where one of them, Mr. Daszynski, is at present the Premier of the provisional government of the whole of Poland, both proper and not proper, namely, Galicia.

Prussian Poland

The only task which confronts Poland at present is consequently the redemption of Prussian Poland, and not Galicia.

The whole story about the resentment of Galicia to being united with Poland proper is a ridiculous invention to one who knows the real conditions among the people over there.

After the suppression of the revolution in Russian Poland in 1863, Galicia was for over fifty years the only real Polish Piedmont for all the Polish patriotic movements, and to say that the same Galicia objects to being united with Poland is a crime against truth and needs no further comment.

Personally, I believe that the only explanation of such a ridiculous delusion could be found only in German propaganda against the interests of Poland.

That German propaganda, in order to hurt the re-establishment of a united and strong Polish state with access to the sea, purposely by all available means invents and exaggerates the difficulties connected with such a plan.

The best proof of this is, for instance, the well established fact that behind all those resentments of the Ukrainians and Lithuanians against the Poles, spoken of in the above mentioned editorial, is always some hidden German or Austrian influence or agency.

Divide and Rule

"Divide et impera"—divide and rule—that is the slogan of German propaganda in Poland.

The Germans are aware that a strong Polish state would be forever a stumbling block for their Prussianism in Central Europe, and this is why they are so anxious to hurt the Polish cause, not only by antagonizing the Ukrainians and Lithuanians against the Poles, but also by organizing and instigating anarchy, Bolshevism and different anti-semitic movements in Poland.

They want to introduce the same disorder in Poland which they have created in Russia, and their object is that with their lies will quickly force them out of this downtrodden country by sending there the Polish army now in France and by establishing the natural communication with Poland by way of Dantzig.

The moment this is done, all difficulties connected with the re-establishment and unification of Poland will disappear.

It seems that civilization of the world owes to the Polish people at least that recognition, the faith in their national vitality and future.

ON HEELS OF GERMANS IN LIBERATED LANDS

France, Belgium and Poland have been released from the rule of the hated German invader. The enemy hosts have taken their sullen way across the borders, but have left ruin and misery in their wake. A full page of pictures—the first to reach this country—showing France and Belgium as they appear today, and another full page of photographs of Poland, which is to have its independence and an outlet to the sea, will appear in the next

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER AND AMERICAN

MYSTERIES ABOUT THE SUN'S RAYS

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I wish you would explain how heat and light escaping from the sun penetrates glass.—M. B., Chelsea, Mass."

IT is not "heat" and "light" that escape from the sun, but something which, upon reaching the earth, produces the effects which we call heat and light. This something has for a long time been regarded as if it consisted of minute waves, or undulations, in an invisible and intangible medium, pervading all space and all things, and named "the ether."

The only evidence of the existence of the ether is comprised in the effects ascribed to it, and to account for all of those effects various apparently contradictory qualities have been assigned to the ether.

Not only does the proof of the existence of the ether rest entirely upon inference from circumstantial evidence, but the different deponents present it in surprisingly different ways. It is as if a series of identification witnesses should say of the unseen personage in question—some that he was a black man and others that he was a white man, some that he was not a man but a bird, others that he was no bird but a fish, others that he was no animal at all but a plant, and still others that he was neither plant nor animal, but that he possessed the characteristics of both, and yet some more characteristics belonging to neither.

Change in Thought

While, on top of all, the court would declare that it was impossible to reject any of this contradictory evidence without rejecting the whole, because to suit the requirements for the supposititious person he must be, at one and the same time, everything that the various witnesses described! Recently, however, there has been a strong movement toward a great change in scientific thought, as far as the ether is concerned.

Reason has been found for thinking that, after all, there may be no such things as the ether, and that the radiant energy of the sun does not spread out in waves, but in the form of minute "units," or particles (which was substantially Newton's idea), which are shot out somewhat like continuous showers of little bullets from the source of radiation. These supposed units of radiant energy are called "quanta," or "light quantities."

But, whether we consider the radiations from the sun as being waves or projectiles, the fact remains that they are not heat or light, or do not produce the effects called heat and light until they encounter something which can bring about a transformation in them. In open space, on their way from the sun to the earth, the rays of the sun are not visible unless they strike some material thing, and then it is simply that thing which becomes visible by sending off the arrested radiation in the form of light. So, the solar rays do not heat empty space, but if they fall upon some material object they are more or less completely stopped by it and transformed into heat, somewhat as a bullet shot from a gun and traveling through a vacuum would have no effect until it was arrested by a solid target, whereupon its motion of translation would be transformed into the molecular vibrations called heat.

How We See the Sun

When we see the sun itself it is because certain of the rays entering our eyes excite the optic nerve, and that excitation produces the physiological phenomenon that we call light, while other nerves excited by the sun rays produce the other physiological phenomenon that we call heat or warmth.

The penetration of glass by the solar radiation is more easily explained, perhaps, by the wave-theory. The transparency of the glass is due to its molecular structure. Professor Tyndall put the gist of the explanation into a single luminous sentence when he said: "Transparency is synonymous with discord, while opacity is synonymous with sound between the periods of the waves of ether and those of the atoms of the body on which they impinge."

This means that in the case of bodies whose periods of molecular vibration accord with those of the rays entering light the rays are absorbed, just as a violin string will absorb sounds having its own vibrational period, and consequently the rays are arrested; while bodies whose internal vibrations differ in period from the rays will allow them to pass. The same thing occurs with the rays producing heat.

But, in reality, any solid will transmit more or less light if it (the solid) is made sufficiently thin. This shows that when the opaque substance is excessively thin, though of its atoms do not lie in the way of the rays to arrest more than a small part of them,
